FROM WASHINGTON.

All the Members of the Kansas Committee in Washington—Majority and Minority Reports.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 29.

Mr. OLIVER having returned, all the members of the Kansas Investigating Committee are now in Washington. Messrs. SHERMAN and HOWARD have just completed their report, and will probably submit it to the House to-morrow. The presentation of the minority report will be deferred a few days.

XXXIVth CONGRESS—First Session.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, June 28.

Messrs. HOWARD and SHERMAN, of the Kansas Investigation Committee, have arrived.

DEBATE ON THE ADMISSION OF KANSAS.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill providing for the admission of Kansas into the Union.

Mr. STEPHENS, having the floor, intimated his desire to offer a substitute.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, asked him to accept as an amendment thereto, in effect to repeal so much of the Kansas act as declares void the Missouri Compromise.

Mr. STEPHENS—I do not accept it.

Mr. CAMPBELL—I suppose not.

Mr. WASHBURN, of Maine, said Mr. STEPHENS' proposition was a side blow to kill the Kansas Bill.

Mr. STEPHENS denied this, expressing his desire that the latter should be referred to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union. He vindicated the Kansas-Nebraska act, and condemned the movements of the Northern people to thwart the policy of that measure. He said the pending bill admitted on its face that the Topeka Constitution was formed against law and order. He was inclined to think the real object of this movement was not so much to get Kansas into the Union as a Free State as to kindle the fires of civil war in the country.

Mr. CAMPBELL, in the course of his reply to Mr. STEPHENS, said he would prove that JEFFERSON denied the constitutional power to acquire territory, and could produce the original manuscript of a letter written by JEFFERSON a few years before his death, in which he not only approved of the Missouri Compromise, but in express terms admitted the power of Congress to exclude Slavery. This letter he intended to have lithographed to accompany his speech. He denied that the Kansas-Nebraska bill carried out the provisions of the Compromise measures of 1850, arguing the constitutionality and expediency of excluding Slavery from the Territories.

Messrs. CAMPBELL and STEPHENS repeatedly interrupted each other for explanations regarding the controverted points on Slavery.

Mr. EVANS, of Texas, was in favor of admitting Kansas as soon as practicable, without regard to the number of inhabitants, providing a fair election could be had. He would send thither General SCOTT to secure such a result. He contended that popular sovereignty was an egregious error, because no people could exercise sovereign power till they had acquired complete jurisdiction over the soil.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, contended that the Administration must be held responsible for the present agitation, and argued against the extension of Slavery into the Territories.

Mr. DUNN, of Indiana, expressing a wish to strike down what has led to the present disturbances and restore things to where they were previous to the Kansas-Nebraska act, offered an amendment substantially to restore the Missouri Compromise.

Mr. GROW, of Penn., moved the previous question.

Mr. WARREN, of Ala., made an unsuccessful motion to adjourn, and then moved to lay the bill on the table, which was negatived by 60 against 120.

The demand for the previous question was sustained by 98 against 68.

The main question was then ordered, that the bill be the first business in order on Monday.

Adjourned.

The House Bill for the Admission of Kansas—Mr. Dunn's Logic—Mr. Haven Astray—The Senate Rules Amended, &c.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 26, 1856.

THE STATE OF KANSAS.

The House of Representatives has at last got fairly at work upon the bill for the admission of Kansas, with a reasonable prospect of being able to pass it in the shape reported from the Committee on Territories, notwithstanding the treachery of a very few of those who profess to be Free-State men, but have never failed, since the commencement of this session, to throw all their influence in favor of the enemy.

Mr. GROW opened the debate yesterday in a clear, manly speech, setting forth the circumstances under which the people of Kansas formed their Constitution and made application to be admitted into the Union, and briefly stating why this application should be favorably received.

GEORGE G. DUNN AND HIS LOGIC.

Mr. DUNN, of Indiana, as I have already indicated, did not miss the opportunity while within the camp of the friends of Free Kansas, to strike a blow for the Pro-Slavery opposition. He was opposed to the bill, forsooth, because the officers of the State Government proposed to be recognized by it are under indictment for treason! That is to say, he refuses, as a law maker to redress the wrongs of Kansas and her champions of Liberty, because, at this precise hour, those wrongs are weighing upon them! Because a usurping Administration, sustaining the iniquitous laws of a fraudulent Territorial Legislature, has declared the State Government illegal, and arrested those who attempted to establish it, therefore a professed friend of freedom, representing a freedom-loving constituency in the State of Indiana, refuses as a legislator to decide between the Administration and the accused Free-State men, —refuses to loose their chains by taking the only step by which it is possible at once to blot out the stupendous scheme of fraud which has been perpetrated against the interest of the Freemen of Kansas, and to restore to them the right of legitimate self-Government! Can Mr. DUNN satisfy his constituents that his course is sensible, practical and honest? If yes, he is more fortunate than other Indianians here believe.

SOLOMON G. HAVEN AGRAY, AS USUAL.

Mr. HAVEN, too, has again found himself compelled to go with the enemy. How strange it is that he always finds it necessary to "go in a gang by himself," and yet that his "gang" invariably pulls on the far end of the rope manned by the enemies of Freedom. He, like Mr. DUNN, wants the consideration of the pending bill postponed. The whole North is alive to the necessity of immediately rescuing Kansas from the oppression she now suffers. The whole North is fully satisfied that Missouri and not Kansas elected the Legislature which has imposed upon the Territory a despotism worse than Russian. But Mr. HAVEN is wiser than the people he represents, and wont open his ears to the evidence that long since impelled the honest instincts of the people to a verdict of guilty against those accused of trampling down all law and natural right in Kansas. He wants more light; and joins Mr. DUNN in the desire that the bill should be referred to the Committee of the Whole. Do not these gentlemen know that such a reference inevitably smothers the bill? Do they not know that once referred it can never be reached again, because it will require a two-thirds vote, to take it up ahead of the hundreds of bills already upon the Calendar? Do they not know that if they can succeed in carrying this reference they will have done all that the Administration men ask, hope or desire? Can they suppose that spurious protestations of their purposes will prevent the country from looking directly to the results of the action they are advocating, and holding them accountable for those results, instead of judging them by their professions. Let it no more be said that HAVEN and DUNN act with the opposition to the Administration. Their associations and their actions are with the enemy, and with them they should be counted in all these benchwork. They have a perfect right to pursue their present course. That is a matter between themselves, their consciences and their constituents. But it is important that the latter should understand the course of their representatives, and settle with them accordingly. That's all.

A WRONG ANTICIPATED.

I trust that the mischievous movements of these gentlemen will not seriously embarrass the friends of the bill, now that it is known just where they are. Much of Mr. HAVEN's argument in favor of postponement was calculated to mislead some of our friends; but his unfortunate admission that he was against the bill anyhow, and was not likely to vote for it under any circumstances, opened the eyes of true men at once, and destroyed the influence which his argument might have had, except for this apparently accidental betrayal of his insincerity. As near as can be estimated now there is a majority of at least six and probably of ten for the bill, if a decision can be had upon it without much further delay. There is no reason why the vote should be deferred, for the subject has been debated all through the session, and further discussion will elicit no new ideas; or affect the result in the slightest degree. It is to be hoped that the bill will be pressed to a vote by Monday at latest.

LICENSE AND LIMITS OF DEBATE.

In the Senate to-day a somewhat interesting discussion occurred upon a report, made by Mr. STUART, of Michigan, of sundry amendments to the rules of the Senate, relating chiefly to the subject of restricting the license of debate. The report proposed several amendments, which, if adopted, would put it in the power of a partisan presiding officer to cut off a speaker upon pretence of being out of order, just as often as it should suit a partisan purpose to do so. The Senate, to its honor be it said, was unwilling to commit itself to the work thus blocked out for it, but—following the suggestions of CLAYTON, DOUGLAS and BRIGHT—defeated their action by the adoption of a single amendment providing it the duty of the presiding officer of the body to call a Senator to order when transgressing the rules of the Senate, or the Parliamentary law. Heretofore, at least since Mr. CALHOUN presided over the Senate, it has been held that the President of the body could not himself call a Senator to order, except upon application of another Senator.

AN INCONSISTENT CRITIC.

How inconsistent public men often are, at the very time when they deem themselves freest from any such suspicion. Thus to-day, Mr. BENJAMIN, of Louisiana, who certainly is not often betrayed into personalities upon the floor, while speaking upon the proposed amendment of the rules, took occasion to condemn what he deemed personality in Mr. SUMNER's recent speech, at the same instant became a subject of his own strictures, by declaring his belief that Mr. SUMNER intended to provoke a personal assault, and desired that it should be made even while he was upon the floor. It strikes me that this was rather personal on the part of the Senator from Louisiana,—unless the locality from which he hails relieves him from all suspicion of such an inconsistency.

AN ELEMENT OF REAL MANHOOD.

Mr. TOOMBS, in the course of a few remarks, presented a new idea which I suppose is not patented, and therefore may be repeated for your edification. He says whenever a company of "real men,—none of your shams," are thrown together for the considerations of questions upon which they differ, they were sure to fight. To illustrate his idea he went away back to the days of CONSTANTINE, and said that the first body of Christians, which ever assembled, battered each other's noses all about the question of the adoption of a Greek diphthong. The argument you perceive is, that the bull-dog quality of the readiness to enter into conflicts of violence and blood for the enforcement of a sentiment, or principle, or faith, is a constituent part of true manhood. It may be questioned whether the Georgia Senator's affirmation is not to be taken with just the qualification which we attach to the story that a Georgia costume is a standing shirt collar and a pair of spurs.

Movements of Mr. Fillmore.

ARRIVAL AT LOCKPORT—HIS RECEPTION AND THE SPEECH OF GOV. HUNT.

LOCKPORT, Saturday, June 28.

Mr. FILLMORE reached Lockport at 10 o'clock this morning. He was received at the depot by a large number of citizens, on horseback and in carriages, with a company of military and music. A procession was formed, and Mr. FILLMORE conducted to the American Hotel, where he was received by Gov. HUNT, who welcomed him home, and said: "While our citizens recognize in you an eminent citizen who has attained the highest distinction by virtue of integrity, ability, and an honest zeal in the service of his country, they feel a just pride in those free institutions which develop manly energies, the true passport to public honors. It has been your lot to bear a conspicuous part in national history, and to act upon important measures which have excited deep interest and produced grave conflicts of opinion These differences ought not, among liberal reflecting minds, and surely will not be permitted to weaken the sentiments of respect so justly due to your public character and private virtues. If, by some healing miracle, the disturbing questions which have proved so fruitful in domestic strife, could to-day be terminated by restoring the basis established during your administration of the Government—if all the evils engendered by the subsequent departures from that policy could now be blotted out from history, no one can doubt that a large majority of the American people, of all parties, and in all sections of our common country, would truly rejoice, and indulge in brighter hopes of the permanence of our national liberty, our union, and independence." [Applause.]

Mr. FILLMORE, in reply, deprecated the disturbance of measures alluded to by Gov. HUNT, and expressed the hope that the people would take such a course as may be considered best calculated to restore tranquillity and preserve the harmony of the Union. He deprecated the undue exercise of foreign influence in the Government, and declared in favor of self-government by the people, and against any unjust, illegal interference of States with the affairs of other States or of the Territories.

Considerable enthusiasm was manifested. Mr. FILLMORE proceeds to Buffalo at 3¼ P. M.

HIS ARRIVAL HOME—RECEPTION BY THE BUFFALONIANS.

BUFFALO, Saturday, June 28.

Mr. FILLMORE's reception was the greatest public demonstration that ever transpired in this city. Early in the morning the stores and public buildings were lavishly decorated with flags and banners and devices in the best taste imaginable. Main-street was perfectly covered with ornaments in the shape of flags. Nearly every building for seven or eight squares was decorated. The shipping in the harbor had bunting flying at their mast-heads.

Mr. FILLMORE arrived at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, via the Falls road. The procession formed at the depôt. It was composed of military, the city firemen, the Board of Trade, and private citizens. It was half-an-hour in passing a given point. It paraded through the principal streets to Niagara square, where a stand was erected. After reaching the platform thirteen young ladies, dressed in white, came forward, and each presented Mr. FILLMORE with a bouquet. R. W. ROGERS then delivered an address on behalf of the citizens, welcoming Mr. FILLMORE home. Mr. FILLMORE replied, thanking them for the compliment bestowed by his fellow-citizens, without party reference, and reverting to his tour in Europe, contrasting the condition of that continent with this, adding, he received congratulations, not as a party affair, but as from old friends, whom he had known for thirty years. He closed by thanking his friends for the cordial manner with which they had welcomed him home.

He then retired to his residence, escorted by the military, and cheered by the large crowd present. The streets were perfectly crowded, but everything went off in perfect order.

The American Party in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Saturday, June 28.

There is considerable excitement in the American Party in regard to the State Convention of Tuesday next. At a large meeting in Charlestown last night the attempt to sell out the party to the Republicans was denounced, and the delegates were instructed to go for FILLMORE. In other places Fillmore delegates have also been elected, but in Newburyport an American meeting has ratified FREMONT. The Fillmore men say that if the Springfield Convention indorses FREMONT they will bolt and organize anew for the Presidential campaign.

Sinking of the Steamer Montezuma.

CINCINNATI, Friday, June 27.

The steamer Montezuma, from Pittsburg with a cargo of dry goods, struck on a snag, 10 miles below here, last night, and sank immediately. No lives were lost. The loss on the vessel is not known.

Assassination at Hyde Park.

HYDE PARK, Penn., Saturday, June 28.

Mr. P. STEPHENS, Justice of the Peace at this place, was shot dead this afternoon, near here, while riding in a carriage. Wm. W. Jones, who was with him at the time, says he was so frightened that he did not stop to look for the murderer. The deceased leaves a family.

The Expected Steamer at Quebec.

BOSTON, Sunday, June 29—5 P. M.

The steamship North America is now over eleven days out from Liverpool for Quebec, and is fully due. Efforts have been made to-day to communicate by telegraph with Quebec, but, owing probably to stormy East of this, we have been unable to accomplish it.

The Weather.

BOSTON, Sunday, June 29.

The thermometer to-day, ranged from 86° to 100° in the shade. There was a heavy thunder storm at Portland, to-night.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 29.

The thermometer here, to-day, stood 95° in the shade, and 96° in the steeple of the State House—an elevation of 100 feet.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 29.

The Thermometer, 90° to 95° in the shade.

Amusements.

The SUMMER GARDEN (there is something cool and grateful in the name) will be opened on Tuesday (to-morrow) evening, under the direction of Mr. DION BOUCICAULT. This dramatic retreat, it may be well to mention, stands on the spot formerly occupied by Mr. WALLACK's theatre, and externally presents very much the same appearance. The name of Garden is justified by certain floral attributes which will shed their gentle influence over the hole where you pay your fifty cents. You leave commerce and the world behind the moment you have secured your ticket, and plunge at once into a wilderness of bloom laden exotics. You are surrounded by all those beautiful, love-provoking things which the imaginative Claude Melnotte pictured to the too sanguine Pauline. Fountains, flowers, flutes, fragrance and figures (in the coolest of marble) intoxicate the senses with delicious combinations. In that portion of the Garden, devoted to dramatic purposes, every attention has been bestowed on a proper amount of ventilation. A huge fan (worked by powerful machinery, and suspended from the roof) wafts perfumed gales to the hot brow of the visitor. This contrivance, simple in itself, has been admirably applied, and will entirely obviate any unpleasant consequences from extreme heat. A number of new pieces, never played in New-York, will be produced during the season, such as the Phantom, (said to be the most intense drama in the language,) Lafayette, The Chameleon, The Cat Changed into a Woman, &c., &c. The company are, Mr. BOUCICAULT, Mr. T. B. JOHNSTON, Mr. P. S. HOWE, (Boston Theatre,) Mr. KALTON, (Philadelphia,) Mr. BURNETT, (Baltimore,) and others. Miss ANNIE ROBERTSON, Miss JESSIE MACHEAN, Miss ADA CLARE, Miss THOMPSON, Mrs. JOHNSTON, and others. The Orchestra will be under the direction of Mr. ROBERT SPIGHT, and will be composed of the best musicians in the City. It is intended to make a feature of this department.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—To-night the Ravels revive LEMAN's great spectacle of the "Elf King," and, in addition, give a variety of excellent Summer entertainments. Miss EMMA STANLEY—an artist of great merit—has been engaged by Mr. NIBLO, and will shortly appear in a novel entertainment.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—The performances, to-night, will consist of the "Battle of Brandywine," the "Magic Barrel" and the "Hole in the Wall."

BOWERY THEATRE.—Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM enters on his term of management to-night, and produces SHAKSPEARE's Tragedy of "Macbeth" for the occasion. The company engaged by Mr. BROUGHAM is remarkably good,—much superior to any company hitherto engaged at this house. He deserves success, and will, doubtless meet with it.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—Still the Prize Drama This patriotic play will be peculiarly seasonable during the present week, and will, doubtless, draw overflowing crowds. "New-York Patriots" every night; various entertainments in the afternoon. To-day, at 2 o'clock, an entirely new piece, written by a gentleman of this City, will be produced. It is called "I Prefer the Widow."

KELLER'S TABLEAUX.—These admirable entertainments are still continued at the Empire Hall. New Tableaux are added every week, and nothing is neglected that can contribute to the enjoyment of an Art evening.

The Dusseldorf Gallery and the Egyptian Museum are institutions which should never be neglected. They are superior to anything of the kind on this Continent.

BURTON'S THEATRE.—An attractive bill is offered here to-night—the principal piece being "London Assurance," in which Mr. and Mrs. COWEN will appear.

Musical, Dramatic, and Art Items.

The Mendelssohn Union, a young and flourishing association, will give its fourth and last soirée of the season at the City Assembly Rooms on Tuesday evening, when MENDELSSOHN's music to RACINE's "Athalie," with other selections, will be performed under the direction of Mr. MORGAN.... The celebrated composer W. V. WALLACE has met with a severe affliction, arising, it is supposed, from over-work. He has become almost totally blind, and is now under the first medical treatment of London. He has been advised to return to America, and will probably do so in a very few weeks. Mr. WALLACE has been busily engaged during his sojourn in Europe in completing two operas, which will be produced in Paris and London next Fall. The application has resulted in this dreadful calamity. It is hoped, however, that repose and the pure air of America will restore his vision.... ROSSINI has made a great success in London in the "Medea." The papers are very enthusiastic about her, but she does not displace RACHEL in the Temple of Fame. She is looked on as the equal of that great actress.... The Sicilian papers speak of a new wind instrument, which has lately been produced at Giogan; it is played upon through the nose instead of the mouth, and, according to the Sicilian critic, gives a "melodious, melting, heart-rejoicing tone," to which no other wind instrument played in the usual way has yet attained.... THE NATIONAL GALLERY.—A correspondent of the Daily News says that the "new" Bottticelli, one of the latest purchases by Sir C. EASTLAKE, is an old copy, the head having been twice painted in and out.... Among the pictures lately sold by Messrs. CHRISTIE and MANSON, a sunset, by CUYP, went for 205 guineas; a landscape, by VAN DER HEYDEN and VAN DER VELDE, for 224 guineas; a sea-piece, by VAN DER VELDE, 210 guineas; "The Egg Dance," by TENIERS, 600 guineas; a "Last Supper," by ALBANO, 110 guineas; and "The Castle of Bentheim," by RUYSDAEL, 1,510 guineas.... Mr. BRAHAM has returned from Lisbon. While crossing the Bay of Biscay he delighted his fellow passengers and crew by singing his father's famous song, "The Bay of Biscay, O!"

.... MME. ROSSI is said to be 150,000 francs the richer for her last Paris season of three months.... Covent Garden Theatre, it is very confidently expected, and we believe with great show of truth, will by next season be rebuilt and completed. The building is very far less injured by the recent fire than is generally supposed, the external shell will need very little renovation, and the basement walls, of great extent and utility, are almost untouched.... It is rumored also that MAPLESON is engaged on a work for the Royal Italian Opera, which will inaugurate the new opera house.... "Le Fanfron des Vices," the new comedy, by MM. DUMANOIR and BEVILLE, just produced at the Theatre Gymnase, of Paris seems to be yet another picture of the life we men might be live, and of the people we men should live among. It is said by M. JANIN to have succeeded.... ....LOLA MONTEZ has been getting into one of her usual difficulties in Australia. Her fun not succeeded in getting out of it with her customary tact. She thought fit to bully the manager of a theatre before his wife's face. The latter fired up at the insults heaped on her husband, pitched into the fair LOLA and gave her a most scientific and satisfactory thrashing. Lola had to send for a roll of sticking plaster and the doctor. What to worse than this, the manager's wife intends for more satisfaction, and is longing to have another turn. Poor Lola walks in the shadow of a mighty cowhide.... The Literary Gazette, which is rather famous for discovering men's nests, informs its readers that a vine-dresser of Albano, near Rome, is said to have found in a vineyard the celebrated ring of PERUGINO. It is asserted that the peasant has been offered fifty thousand dollars for it by an Englishman, but has declined it, expecting to make a more profitable bargain with the Emperor ALEXANDER.... A statute of BURNS by Mr. THOM, and of CURRAN by Mr. CARRU, will be placed in St. Stephen's hall. The price of the new figures will be $1,000 each.... Italian journals announce the purchase (at Milan) of three pictures by PIETRO PERUGINO for the National Gallery. They also express a hope that "the administration of the N. G. have been happier in their purchase this time than when they bought the Paul Veronese".... Some curious paintings have been discovered on the walls of Hadleigh Church, Essex, the oldest being of the thirteenth century, the latest of the fifteenth. Among them is a representation of the legend of St. George and the Dragon, with all the accessories necessary to the full comprehension of the story.... The "Kissing Polka" is said to be the rage in London. A cool and refreshing zest of dance for the watering places, we should think.... The Sacred Harmonic Society give their last concert this evening at Duworth's Saloon.... VESTVALI (who was to have commenced a series of operatic entertainments to-night) is quite sick, and unable to appear in public.... It is rumored that LAURA KEENE and Mr. BOUCICAULT have come to terms; it is also rumored that LAURA KEENE is negotiating for the purchase of another place, (BUCKLEY' new hall,) for giving theatrical entertainments; it is further rumored that neither of these rumors is correct.... TAYLOR, the pianist, will arrive here in the Fall, and give a series of concerts prior to his departure for England.... They have a Spanish dramatic company in San Francisco. A programme before us contains two pieces, "Tio Caniyitas," a comic opera, and "Muerto, Diablito y Gurrero," a farce.... LA GRANGE and GOTTSCHALK gave a concert at Buffalo on Friday.

Arrival of the Alma.

The steamship Alma, from Southampton on the 14th, arrived at this port yesterday. Her advices have been anticipated by the Asia.

New-York Conference of the Methodist Church.

This body of ministers adjourned June 25, after a session at Bridgeport of one week. Some of the more prominent clerical appointments for the year are the following:

William H. Norris, Presiding Elder of the New-York district; Forsyth-street Church, S. M. Hartzell; Cherry-street Church, W. P. Corbett; Willet-street, W. McAlister; Second-street, S. W. King; Allen-street, H. Bangs; Norfolk-street, J. E. Searles; Ninth-street, J. Henson; Seventh-street, B. Pilsbury; Thirty-seventh-street, H. Husted.

Brooklyn—Sands-street, John Miley; Washington-street, Charles Stelling; York-street, C. Kelsey; First-place, J. H. Rylance; Pacific-street, J. Kennedy; Carlton-avenue, J. B. Wood; Summerfield Chapel, J. M. Reid; South Second-street, J. S. Mitchell; North Fifth-street, C. T. Mallory; South Third-street, L. C. Cheney; South Fifth-street, R. L. Janes; Flushing, T. H. Burch; Hempstead, E. J. Fox.

Bridgeport District—E. E. Griswold, Presiding Elder; New-Haven District, A. Nash, Presiding Elder; New-Haven, First Church, M. L. Scudder; John-street, J. Pegg, Jr.; George-street, W. F. Collins; Hartford, L. S. Wood; Middletown, W. C. Hoyt.

Dr. Wheedon and Dr. Floy, both of this Conference, are the editors, the first of the Quarterly Review, and the latter of the National Magazine.

The paper sent down from the General Conference recommending an alteration of the Discipline, so as to allow the ordination of Bishops for Africa, was non-concurred in, by a vote of 36 in favor to 89 against it.

NEW-YORK CITY.

The Slaver Brazos.

To-morrow the libel against the alleged slaver Brazos is returnable before the United States Circuit Court. Although appraisers of the vessel were appointed on a promise that the ship would be bonded, no bond has yet been filed by the alleged claimant. Nor has any claim been put in for the cargo. Unless action is taken to-day, the vessel and cargo will have to be forfeited to the Government and those who seized the vessel. The value of ship and cargo, it will be remembered, is estimated at $7,000.

City Mortality.

The total number of deaths in the City for the week ending the 28th inst., was 316—viz: 67 men, 69 women, 117 boys, 139 girls. This is an increase of 49 on the mortality of the previous week. One death from cholera is reported. There were 8 deaths from violent causes. Considering the sudden changes in the weather, and the intense heat of the past few days, our City sanitary condition is not unsatisfactory.

☞ We have seen the gold medal presented by the Howard Association of Norfolk, to Dr. GEORGE FERMINGER of this City, one of the six physicians who went to the relief of the sick in that place, when the pestilence of 1855 was raging. The medal is a little larger over than a $20 gold piece. On one side are three figures, representing Faith, Hope and Charity, and the inscription, "Presented by the Howard Association of Norfolk, Va." On the other side is seen the Good Samaritan, and the inscription, "I was sick, and you visited me;" Matt. 25, 36—with the name of the recipient.

☞ There are no people in the world, not even the Arabs, who treat their horses more humanely than the New-York carmen. The latest invention which their ingenuity has devised for the comfort of their beasts is a portable sewing suspended over their backs to prevent Phoebus, who, in olden times, was fond of horses, from wooing their animals too warmly. The steeds, although they seem ambitious enough, make no objection to being thus thrown in the shade. It is a pity that stage proprietors cannot provide for their horses with equal care.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—June 28.

Before Judge Whiting.

The People, on the relation of J. Finch, vs. The School Commissioners of the Twenty-second Ward.—This was a proceeding to compel the defendants to sign a warrant for payment of teachers. The Commissioners objected to paying the bill on account of its including the amount allowed a female teacher who is a sister of a School Trustee of the Twenty-second Ward. The Commissioners contend that she had been appointed in violation of a rule of the Board of Education, which prohibits the appointment of relatives of the School Trustees within the fourth degree. The Commissioners professed a willingness to sign a warrant for the other teachers. It was contended, in answer to this objection, that the rule forbidding the appointment of relatives did not relate to those legally in office, who were entitled fully to all the rights and privileges incident to their offices, including promotion and transfer to other schools; that the young lady in question in this proceeding, was not appointed, but merely transferred from one school to another, and that the Board of Education had interpreted their own rule by declaring it inapplicable to transfers from one school to another. The Judge said that the main question was whether mandamus was a proper remedy in the case, and that he was bound to carry out the rule of the Board of Education in its spirit, and not to nullify the rules which, whether right or wrong, they were constituted to make; but the relator has all constitutional rights. Decision reserved. F. O. Dean, for relator; E. M. Shepard, for defendants.

A Reformed Dutch Church is now in the process of erection in Chicago. This will be the only edifice belonging to that denomination in the city.

NEWS FROM CALIFORNIA.

THE REVOLUTION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The Burial of James King of William—Execution of Casey and Cora—Proceedings of the Vigilance Committee—Resignation of Sheriff Scott—Opposition to the Committee—Martial Law Proclaimed in San Francisco.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Thursday, June 5, 1856.

My last letter closed at 2 o'clock P. M., May 31. At that hour the streets opening upon the square of the Vigilance Rooms were crowded by ten to fifteen thousand persons, anxiously expectant of the execution of CORA and CASEY, who, it was generally understood, had been adjudged to death by the Vigilance Committee. The crowds were composed of the military and mounted men until sunset, when they dispersed. The shades of night gathered around the City—JAMES KING OF WILLIAM lay in his shroud—but the Avenger had not yet claimed the final penalty.

FUNERAL OF JAMES KING.

The next day, May 32, three thousand bayonets gleamed in the golden sunlight. Early in the day preparations for the funeral were commenced. Steamers were arriving with military companies, societies, deputations and citizens from the river towns, and the streets were now crowded with people. The shops remained closed, and draped in mourning. At 11 o'clock the church was opened for the funeral service, and was soon filled almost entirely with ladies. Long lines of mourners were formed in the streets in the vicinity. More than twenty thousand persons were assembled to take part in the ceremonies. Presently, a plain coffin was seen approaching the church. The crowd opened for its passage, and involuntarily raised their hats. Every cheek was wet with tears, for all knew that in it were the beloved ashes and the six beautiful little children of the City's idol.

The services were short, but extremely solemn and affecting. It was remarked that the heads of the Vigilance Committee were not in the procession, but stood by their arms in Sansome-street. It was presumed that this was merely a precaution against a surprise from the officials and the friends of the prisoners, during the funeral procession. Bands of music headed the procession to the Lone Mountain Cemetery, but their instruments were muffled, and not a sound broke the stillness of that sad funeral march, save the stifled sobs of the many mourners.

EXECUTION OF CORA AND CASEY.

Now, a dreadful rumor filled the air. It was said the Committee were erecting gallows on the roof of their building. Thousands from every quarter of the city rushed towards Sansome-street. A horrid scene opened upon their vision. Masses of infantry were drawn up on every side of the prison, flanked by cavalry with drawn sabres. Dangling between heaven and earth, from beams thrust out of the two great windows of the Committee rooms, were the livid corpses of JAMES P. CASEY and CHARLES CORA. Every square in the vicinity was filled with excited people, and the housetops were completely covered. Notwithstanding the general impression that the executions would not take place till the morrow, some thirty 30,000 men must have been witnesses of the horrid scene.

Just as the funeral procession was moving, and the conflict was being renewed, the Golden Age came in from Panama, with the sad news of the Panama Railroad slaughter. Nothing was lacking to add to the doom of the 30th May.

A quiet day followed the funeral and execution. Business was generally suspended—many of the wholesale houses having closed for the first time for several days. But a day companion of military were still under arms, to guard the approaches to the Vigilance rooms and to protect the Committee in their deliberations.

On the 6th, the Grand Jury presented a true bill against Judge BENJAMIN MCKENZIE and PETER WHEELHAN, alderman, as accessories to the murder of Mr. KING. It was supposed the Committee had also full proof of the complicity of these two men, and that the conspiracy embraced many others. At night scouts were immediately sent out by the Vigilance in every direction to search for the fugitives, and all the outlets of the city were guarded to prevent escape. If the criminals were still in the city, [illegible] were prevented and all suspected persons [illegible] Superintendent [illegible], the Firemen, reported to have McGOWAN on [illegible] search outside the Works, and a [illegible] excitement was kept up all day as the most telegraph from hour to hour reported the proceedings of the Committee. The trial was not overhauled, but the message returned without the prisoner.

MORE SUMMONS BY THE VIGILANCE COMMITTEE.

[illegible] that the extension the movements of the Vigilance Committee evidenced plainly that the work of punishment had but just commenced. Carpenters were set to work fitting up cells in the upper rooms of the stone building used as the United States Appraiser's store—[illegible] and a large cooking-stove were installed into the premises, and a heavy iron door was placed on the roof, a stroke upon which could be heard in the furthest corner of the city. None were allowed to enter the building without the password. Frequently an armed detachment marched into Market-street, [illegible] SULLIVAN, one of the Sheriff's Inspectors; MARTIN GALLAGHER, bailiff [illegible] and HARRY SULLIVAN, driver and [illegible]. Other arrests speedily followed, which, but decoyed, the cells contained eight or ten of the most desperate in the city.

ARRESTS OF RESPECTABLE CITIZENS.

On Saturday, 21st May, to about 11 o'clock, another tale of horror was on everybody's lips. Respectable and committed suicide in his well, by [illegible] with a dinner [illegible] had complained to his guard of horrid dreams. He thought a rope was fastened about his neck—that he stood upon the [illegible] was strangled, and woke up almost [illegible] with a cold perspiration on his brow. The guard counsel him he was not to be hung—that he was to be sent out of the country only. He said he knew it—but that he deserved to die—acknowledged dreadful crimes, and then lay down on his bed [illegible]. When his [illegible] was carried to be was found dead. SULLIVAN had asked the protection of the British Consul—but Mr. ARCHER informed him word that the British lion would not roar for such as he—that if he took charge of him he should send him to Sydney in irons, from whence he was an escaped convict. SULLIVAN was an inspector or judge of the election when CASEY was elected Inst Supervisor of the County.

MORE MYSTERIES.

The night before SULLIVAN's death it was reported that the Governor was about to issue a proclamation against the people of San Francisco—that a habeas corpus was to be served upon the Committee by the Supreme Court for the delivery to it of the prisoners—that the guns were to be [illegible] and that Gov. JOHNSON had asked assistance from Gen. WOOL, and from the U. S. ship-of-war Jon Adams, now in port. On Saturday morning, the rumors began to assume consistency, and the whole force of the Committee was at once placed under arms. The streets were cleared for two blocks on both sides of the Committee's prison. Six additional heavy brass pieces were mounted, and swivels loaded with grape were placed on the roof. Two large pieces of cannon were placed so as to sweep Sacramento-street. These guns were guarded by 100 French with muskets. Two more guns, guarded by a hundred of Sharpe's rifles, pointed down Davis-street to the Steamboat Landing. A sortie on the triangle would have rallied 10,000 men to arms. But now shortly arrived that the Governor had been unsuccessful with Gen. WOOL at Benicia, and had given up the intention of calling out the military divisions in support of the laws. Judge TERRY, however, issued a writ for the person of BILLY MULLIGAN, but the Sheriff was not allowed to enter the rooms, and got the cold shoulder from the Executive Committee.

ARRESTS OF CHARLES P. DUANE.

Sunday, June 1, was another exciting day. CHARLES P. DUANE, late Chief Engineer of the San Francisco Fire Department, was seized and taken to the Committee Rooms. He made some resistance, and there being a considerable show of arms, the triangle was cleared, causing an immense excitement all over the city. The military were at once under arms, the squares cleared, and horsemen with drawn swords kept the streets clear in the vicinity. DUANE's friends saw how futile an attempt at rescue would prove, and so disarmed. DUANE was noted as a leader in New-York previous to 1849, when he shot two of his own kinsfolk, with whom he had a quarrel. He was acquitted, I believe, on the ground that he acted in self-defence. In 1851, he picked a quarrel with the managers of a French ball in Clay-street, and killed one of them on the floor of the ball room. He was tried, but got off, somehow, and afterward attempted the life of one of the jurors, who expressed the opinion that he ought to have been hanged. In 1852 he was elected Chief-Engineer of the Fire Department, and, as far as that went, served a couple of years or more with considerable credit. But he is said to have lately lapsed into drinking, and it is believed the Committee have not arrested him without excellent cause.

On Monday, June 2, two more arrests of noted villians were made. In the house of one of them, WOODLEY KEASBEY, was found a plain made, and apparently harmless ballot-box, but, on closer scrutiny, it was found to be a very ingeniously contrived machine. It had slides on both sides and bottom, chiselled out so as to hold in the crevices several hundred ballots. These slides could be freely operated upon, notwithstanding that the box might be locked and sealed. By pressing upon a spring, as many prepared ballots as necessary might be ejected into the main body of the box during the process of counting!

ATTEMPTS AT AN OPPOSITION MASS-MEETING.

The Herald of Monday contained a call for a mass meeting of the friends of Law and Order, at Portsmouth Square. At that hour, some six or eight thousand had assembled at the place designated. The meeting was called to order by Judge CAMPBELL, who mounted a platform close to the flag-staff, amid the hisses, yells, and catcalls of more than three-quarters of the assemblage. Various gentlemen, all in vain, essayed to address the crowd, but the opposition was so overwhelming, that the meeting was soon broken up. When Col. BAKER, who had defended COSA for the murder of General RICHARDSON, attempted to speak, the uproar was tremendous. Placards were raised over the heads of the multitude bearing taunting inscriptions. One read "BELLE COSA—$10,000," in allusion to the fee this courtesan is said to have paid the Colonel. Another bore a picture of BELLE, with "BELLE COSA, the angel," painted underneath, in allusion to Col. BAKER's encomiums upon her angelic devotion to her paramour after the murder. Other placards read: "Vigilants! come outside!" A man mounted on a lamp-post, held up a tin cracker-box, inscribed on its sides, "Patent Ballot-box." During the meeting, one of the speakers thought the "stars and stripes ought to float over the only loyal assemblage that San Francisco had known since the usurpation of the laws." The flag went up 120 feet high, over the heads of the [illegible] the speakers rostrum—but just as he was commencing an invocation to it, the block gave way, and the flag floated majestically off, [illegible] over the heads of the Vigilants. A tremendous [illegible] and nothing more could be done that day. So the meeting dissolved—the originators of it fully convinced, I should suppose, that "law and Order," as they interpreted it, is at a large discount in this City.

Tuesday was a very quiet day. The Committee were industriously at work, hearing evidence in the cases of the prisoners in its charge. The streets were left open to business; only a few sentinels stationed at the door of the round to prevent intrusion on the part of improper persons. In the evening a report gained credence that a Proclamation had been received, and would be issued on the morrow, declaring the city under martial law.

THE GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Yesterday morning the proclamation of Gov. JOHNSON was published in all the papers, declaring San Francisco "in a state of insurrection." Orders were also published requiring Major-General SHERMAN to call out the divisions under his command, and he all citizens of San Francisco City and County between the ages of 18 and 45 to enroll themselves into military companies of not less than fifty nor more than eighty men each, and to choose their officers. The Committee received the Proclamation very quietly. There was no apparent movement on their part during the day, more than a few dozen loads of additional arms were deposited in the armories of the respective divisions. New members were, however, enrolling themselves all day on that so their names would be taken. At night the guards were doubled—[illegible] relieved each other every three hours with musket.

This morning, Thursday, the papers are alive [illegible] the Governor's Proclamation. The Herald says that two daily papers [illegible] the Vigilance Committee by Major General SHERMAN will have [illegible] 100 [illegible] It is certain that [illegible] General's Office. It is [illegible] the Adjutant-General's Office. It is [illegible] various parts of the city in obedience to the Proclamation. It is also understood that the Governor has called out the third, fourth and fifth divisions. On the other hand, the army of the Vigilants will consist of at least 7,000 to 10,000 men well armed, before night. It is believed that if the men of the remaining regiments to any military call, it will be to that of the Vigilants, and not to the Governor. But no [illegible] what course it in the Committee will pursue [illegible] their cases till the week is finished. One thing will be rather in their favor—they have plenty of money, while the State is "hard up." Civil war is at hand—but the people of San Francisco rather try its chances than submit longer to the shoulder-striking crew who have governed us the past four years.

MARRIAGE OF COSA.

COSA, the murderer of Gen. RICHARDSON, was married to BELLE COSA, his former mistress, about half an hour before his execution. The ceremony was performed by a Catholic priest, in the Condemned's room. His body was given up to BELLE, and buried in the Catholic Cemetery, the Mission Dolores, on Saturday, May 24. His coffin was a magnificent one, and a considerable number of carriages followed him to the grave. COSA was supposed to be possessed of about $60,000 in property, but it is ascertained he left very little.

BERNARD MCGOWAN,

who is believed to be an accomplice in the assassination of Mr. KING, was tried in Pennsylvania some years since, and sentenced to the State Prison for robbing the Mount Bank. After serving out a part of his sentence, he was pardoned by the Governor, and came to San Francisco in 1849. Here he was made a justice, and for two or three years dispensed a base imitation of that article—to the highest bidder. His talents and great cunning were soon found especially adapted to political rascality—and the bullies and blacklegs acknowledged him as the head of their corps. He was generally selected to preside at their primary political meetings, and was always a delegate to the County and State Conventions. "Hon. Judge McGOWAN" sounded so respectable! In part requital for his eminent political services, he was made Commissioner of Emigration, but although the amount of cash he fingered during his official term was very large, the strong box of the Treasury was never made one dollar the richer from this source. French women and draw-poker were too expensive! About six months since, a daughter of Le belle France came near losing her life by the explosion of a torpedo, placed in front of her chamber door, and the Honorable Judge was generally suspected to have been the author of the ingenious plot to get his mistress into a better world. McGOWAN is very respectably connected in the Atlantic States, which is a great pity, as he is sure to swing, if caught.

CASEY'S FUNERAL.

CASEY's body was given to Engine Company No. 10, of which he was foreman. Every engine house in the city was draped in mourning for Mr. KING, save No. 10. As soon as CASEY was hung the whole front of this house was covered with black crape. The funeral took place on Sunday, the 25th, under direction of the Company. Every effort was made to get up a demonstration against the Committee on the occasion. Free carriages were furnished to families who would join in the procession. Hearses were at the service of those who who would join in the cavalcade. All efforts were futile, however, to get any persons of passable respectability into the cortege. In all, about 700 followed the body to the Mission Cemetery. Of these at least nine-tenths were Irish and the balance shoulder-strikers. The whole force of the Committee was under arms the whole day, but no disturbance occurred.

THE BULLETIN

has steadily increased in circulation and business since its founder's death. THOS. S. KING, the brother of James, who held a lucrative place in the Custom-House, resigned it, and now wields the editorial pen of the people's paper. His editorials bear a remarkable resemblance to those of his departed brother. He possesses all the latter's moral and physical courage. The rowdies have not gained much by the change.

THE KING TESTIMONIAL.

The contributions to this fund for the support and education of Mr. KING's children already amount to $28,000. At least $40,000 will be raised. Mr. KING expressed a wish just before he died that his children might be educated in California. A gentleman of the Vigilance Committee, S. P. DEWEY, Esq., has donated to Mrs. KING a beautiful cottage house, and she will go into it this week. She bears her misfortunes with great resignation.

EFFECT OF THE REVOLUTION ON BANKING.

Yesterday, most who had accounts with LUCAS, TURNER & Co. withdrew their deposits. General SHERMAN, of St. Louis, Major-General of the First Division, who issued the Governor's orders calling out the troops, is the head of this banking firm.

GENERAL NEWS.

The great topic has completely overshadowed all other matters and interests. In fact, there is little else talked of besides the revolution. Affairs in the Indian country remain in statu quo. General WOOL is at Benicia.

The speculation in flour is not likely to be a paying one. The operators have shipped this week about 50,000 bbls. to Australia, in order to create the impression, I presume, that there is a great foreign demand, so that home buyers may bite sharper. Eighteen thousand barrels of this went last week in the clipper Carrier Dove.

Business of all kinds in the city is dull, except operations in firearms and powder. The miners were never doing better. I append you some statistics of products, exports and population, which I take from yesterday's Chronicle:

"The export of treasure in May was very large, amounting to no less than $4,675,468, which added to that of the preceding four months—$14,525,124—makes a total for the year thus far of $19,368,284. We expressed the opinion, some time since, that the export of gold this year would amount to if not exceed fifty millions, and we think that the chances are now decidedly favorable to the amount exceeding that sum. Our exports, other than treasure, in May were comparatively small, having been of no greater value than $169,511, which, added to those of the preceding four months, make a total for the year of $1,260,644. Included in the exports of the month were 1,500 flasks quicksilver, valued at $56,250; there was exported previously 8,689 flasks, valued at $327,676 56; the total export of this metal, therefore, for the first five months of 1856, was 9,186 flasks, worth, at the Custom-House value, $368,226 56.

"The arrivals at this port in May, from all quarters, were 113 vessels of 38,769 tons, and the departures during the same period were 92 vessels of 32,572 tons.

"The amount of freight moneys payable upon the cargoes of vessels arriving in May from Atlantic, domestic and foreign ports was $268,824, and for the year thus far the amount is $2,441,499.

"The accessions to our population by arrivals seaward in May were above the same ratio as has been maintained for six months past. The departures of male adults were in excess of the arrivals by 361; the arrival of female adults were in excess 417, and of children 297, of the departures, leaving a net gain during the month of 353 souls. The net gain during the preceding four months was 3,691, and that for the year is accordingly 3,144 souls, all told.

P. S.—It is rumored this morning that all the prisoners in the hands of the Vigilance Committee have been shipped to Melbourne by the Carrier Dove, which sailed at 2 o'clock A. M.

Newspaper Accounts.

PARTICULARS OF THE EXECUTION OF CASEY AND COSA.

From the Alta California, May 22.

While the last tokens of respect were being paid to the memory of Mr. KING, at the Church, a very different proceeding was going on at the rooms of the Vigilance Committee. It had been determined to postpone the execution of these persons until Friday, but a report of such a character as led the Committee to believe that an attempt to rescue the prisoners would be made by an organization, at the time of the funeral, when they thought the rooms would only be partially guarded, gained circulation, and it was finally determined to complete the work, and relieve themselves of their anxiety and suspense, by carrying out the judgment which had already been pronounced.

Notwithstanding the great gathering at the funeral, the rooms of the Committee were surrounded by [illegible] guards, who had not an intimation of the proceedings, and behind the doors, [illegible] stationed all the men of the Committee, armed with muskets, rifles, and revolvers. The streets in the immediate vicinity of the rooms were cleared by the military, and the bayonets of muskets that were displayed in every direction, made the scene quite different from that of the day before. Every door was guarded by a sentinel, and the [illegible] gather on Lucanda throng.

THE PRISONERS.

The plan to carry out the execution of the death sentence, the prisoners was very simple, yet [illegible] two-story granite building, and a gallows was erected [illegible] of two floors and a platform was erected [illegible] door, extending about three feet beyond the line of the building, and provided with a block at the proper [illegible] the executioner, and a rope attached to the beam which projected from the roof of the building, and to which the fatal rope was then attached.

THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE PRISONERS.

About one o'clock the prisoners were brought to the windows in view of the multitude, dressed in their usual costume, and mounted the platform leaving their other whatever. They both appeared to be firm, and not much disturbed by the dreadful fate that awaited them. Before placing the rope upon their necks an opportunity was given them to speak to the people assembled, when CASEY said:

"Gentlemen: I know that will be never believed or understood and would avail nothing. I am as innocent of the crime for which I am about to suffer as any man present. Let not the guilty escape through me. I am not the man. I know that I am to be hung, and I am willing to suffer for what I have done, but I am not a murderer. I was not the man. I know that I am to be hung, but I am not a murderer. When I have the painful silence there not some one who will tell the truth? Gentlemen, I am not a murderer. Let not the blood of my mother, and let her not hear me called a murderer or a murderer. I have always resented wrong, and I have done it.

"Oh God, have mercy on my dear mother! how her heart will bleed at the news. Ask her pain I feel not. This will wring her heart, but she will not believe I am a murderer. I but resented an injury, my poor mother. Oh, my mother, God bless you!

"Gentlemen, I have done now, as I hope God will forgive me, as I hope he will have mercy on me. Oh! my poor mother. Oh God, have mercy on me. My poor, poor mother! Oh God, with accumulated guilt of 20 or 30 years, have mercy upon me—my poor mother!"

At the conclusion of these remarks he seemed to grow weak, and was unable to stand without support from the persons standing by him. Father GALLAGHER was by his side, his spiritual adviser, and constantly telling him to stop thinking and pray. He also observed that the cause, which he stated very, at times. When the noose was placed about his neck he was deeply affected and nearly fainted away, and would have fallen off from the scaffold but for those who supported him.

COSA did not say a word, or desire to. He stood upon the scaffold during CASEY's speech perfectly unmoved, and when the rope was put around his neck he was as unconcerned as before. He also pressed the cross to his lips often during his last moments.

THE LAST MOMENTS.

At 20 minutes past 1 o'clock, everything being ready to carry out the decree of the Committee, the signal was given and the cord that held up the outer end of the scaffolds, or platforms, was cut upon the roof of the building, and the doomed men were both launched into eternity, and suspended between the heaven and the earth. They were dropped about six feet, and expired apparently without any struggling, save a few motions of the lower limbs. During this solemn and awful ceremony a perfect stillness and silence was observed by the vast throng who were spectators to the scene. The guards and many of the citizens who were near uncovered their heads during the execution.

REMOVAL OF THE BODIES.

The bodies were allowed to hang until 2 o'clock, or 55 minutes in all, when they were cut down and taken into the lower room of the building, and afterwards handed over to the Coroner, who will hold an inquest upon them. The members of Crescent Engine Co. No. 10, of which CASEY was a member, requested the custody of the remains of CASEY, and the request will be granted after the inquest.

DRESSED IN MOURNING.

Soon after the execution the house of the above Fire Company was dressed in mourning emblems in respect to Jimmy P. CASEY, who died just visited upon the gallows, and who had formerly been Foreman of the Company.

REMOVAL OF THE BODIES.

The work of death being ended, the body of armed men who had acted as guards on the occasion, were all drawn up in line on Sacramento-street, extending from Davis-street to Sansome-street, double file, and were reviewed by the superior officers. They exhibited a proficiency in the use of arms, and the positions and movements of soldiers, which were truly creditable, and gained for themselves the commendation of thousands of spectators. After this review, they countermarched down to the rooms, and entering one door stacked their arms, and out another door, and mingled with the citizens as usual.

PARTICULARS OF THE SUICIDE OF YANKEE SULLIVAN.

From the Alta California, June 1.

A new flame was added to the excitement about 11 o'clock, by the announcement that JAMES, alias Yankee SULLIVAN, had committed suicide in his cell at the Committee Rooms, where he was confined. People went hurrying to and fro about the streets, and Madam Rumor, with her thousand tongues, at once began to circulate imagined causes of the death of SULLIVAN, and the enemies of the Committee were ready to hear and believe the report of murder, as alleged by some shallow brain, and retailed by others equally silly or knavish. Soon after the death of the prisoner we were waited upon by a couple of gentlemen of the Committee, who were indorsed by the seal of that body, which they bore upon a written document from its officers, who gave us a statement of the facts concerning his death, so far as are or can be known.

From them we learn that during his confinement he has been quite uneasy as to the disposition which would be made of him, and has been restless—eating but little. During all his confinement he has been very penitent for his conduct, and expressed a determination to reform if he should be liberated. He has made a free and unreserved confession of all his crimes and rowdyism, and disclosed, as far as possible, the connection of his accomplices. He has been assured ever since his arrest, that he should not be hung, as the Committee would not execute any man for a crime that the law of the land would not do the same for. He had great reluctance about going to Sydney, and frequently begged of a member of the Committee to intercede to have him sent to New-York. He promised that if he could be sent to the Atlantic States he would avoid large cities, go back into the country, and give up fighting and the use of liquor. He was very anxious that he might be sent alone, as he said his old associates would kill him for the revelations he had made. He seemed to fear transportation with the other prisoners there, and some rowdies not apprehended, as much as he did death itself. The Committee man agreed to do what he could for him, but could not promise to secure all that he asked.

Yesterday morning, at 5½ o'clock, he called the guard who stood without the door of his cell, and asked for a glass of water. After drinking, he said he had experienced a most horrible dream, and went on to relate the dream which he thought he had dreamed, convicted, sentenced and executed. He heard the footsteps of the soldiers approaching to bring him out to the gallows; felt the rope drawn about his neck; imagined he dropped, and while hanging in imagination he awoke, and called for the glass of water. The guard cheered him up, and assured him that he need not fear an execution, as the Committee had already agreed to send him out of the State. He was left to himself again, and at 9½ o'clock, when his breakfast was brought to him, he was dead and cold. Physicians were at once sent for, and they pronounced life extinct, and were of opinion that he had been dead some time. He was lying upon his bed, and the knife with which the deed was committed was lying just beneath his right hand, from which it had apparently dropped. The knife was a common table knife, with a German silver blade and handle of same material, and was quite dull—as much so as ordinary knives of this character. The means resorted to produce death was to make artification upon the left arm, near the elbow, and cutting directly part of the arm down to the bone, laying open a horrid wound. Two large arteries were completely severed, and death must have ensued speedily, and without a single struggle—at least such was the opinion of the physicians.

Information of the death was given to the Coroner, and he removed the body and the knife to his office, where it was exposed to the view of the public. A line was formed, and passed in and out of the room continually from 12 o'clock until 3, when the door was closed. It was estimated that at least ten thousand persons went in to see the remains of this widely-known individual.

SULLIVAN'S CONFESSION.

[The written statement of "JAMES SULLIVAN" is lengthy and minute, and only portions of it can be divulged at present; and as several of the parties implicated are not yet arrested, it is thought best to leave names in blank.]

Last September I was living at the Franklin House, on the road to the fort. The general election was held there, and the ballot box for that election was kept at that house.

Myself and ——, were elected that morning judges of the election. —— was at the same time elected inspector. On the morning of the election day —— rode out to the Franklin House, and called up Mr. ——, and asked him if he would give me a hundred dollars (I forget the exact sum, which I did not have the money with him; but said he would give it to me after the ballots were counted) to change the returns and throw out —— and ——, and bring in a Democratic majority for ——. I told him I would do what the money was good, and he said he would get it ready when the polls were closed. —— was one of the clerks of the election. He then went into the room where the ballots were and stuffed ballots enough to elect —— and ——, by a large majority, nearly as many as all the votes of the precinct. ——, ——, a man called ——, and myself were in the room while —— was writing his returns. Neither myself nor the other judges knew what was writing; but when he had made up some two hundred votes returned for —— and ——, I saw the paper that was what he had written. I then took the paper home, for safe keeping, I know not, though I knew it was wrong. This was in the morning, and before the returns all sealed or any of them counted.

About 11 o'clock in the evening after —— was gone to his city, —— came and called me out of the house into the road. He said he would be ruined if —— did not get elected. He said he would give me a hundred dollars each for —— and ——, if I would do what I could to get them elected. I told him I would do what I could, if I did not have to beat the actual returns to me in 1855.

When I was out door in the evening after I had the last talking with ——, I saw somebody at about one hundred and fifty yards up the road, and I called out to know who it was. He answered, and I thought I should have five hundred dollars to give —— all the votes I could. I told him I would take it. He then left me and went away. I saw him a few days afterwards and asked him for the money, and he said ——. He had given it to ——, and he understood that —— started it round with ——.

The first money I received the day of the election was from Mr. ——, about 8 o'clock in the morning. He gave me ten dollars, and promised the morning. He was over to give me twenty dollars more, if I would "see Mr. —— through." —— the candidate for ——, came out in the course of the morning, and gave me twenty dollars to work for ——. He also gave me twenty hundred dollars to work for ——. A man whose name I don't know at all gave me thirty-five dollars to work for ——. He was a fine-looking man; he talked apparently from the door. In the afternoon, I saw a man, who was then a policeman, come out and give me a paper on which was written, "Mr. ——, will give you two hundred and fifty dollars and don't let ——, shoot him out of his votes."

Two days after the election I got $100, but I don't now remember whether from —— in person or not. I shared this with —— and ——, equally. Some time afterwards I put myself round to ——, and he said he would give me $200 from him. I gave —— his share, but I did not give any to ——, because he charged me and got the $200 ——, paid, and wouldn't share it. —— came to me several times during the day, and was very urgent to elect —— and ——, and to beat —— and ——. All that came to me I did what I could and every one I spoke to wanted to elect ——. Most of them cared that more than anything else. I think his election must have cost my employer some ——; always went for the man that paid biggest. ——, I refused, every time; the last time I went out on the road, when I left ——, I wouldn't be put very mad, and said I was a G—— d d scoundrel. I went away a little ways, when —— and —— came up and talked with him awhile. I heard —— say, "SULLIVAN won't do it," and then —— said, "what the h—ll is he more than any other man." He is only one man here. I —— the second day after the election, and —— came to me in the street, in front of GALLAGHER's drinking saloon, and —— said, let us put —— on the returns and elect him instead of ——. I said, "I don't care, anybody, but ——." You make out the returns and I will put them in." They went away; the returns came in two days; I won't be sure which. I went out to the "Franklin" and signed the returns. —— afterwards told me that his election cost him five hundred dollars. —— and ——, didn't tell me anything about it; I suppose they thought I would want to share.

The next day, being the second day after the election was over, I went to —— saloon and met —— and —— there. I think now that I was mistaken in saying that it was the second day after the election; it must have been the third day; it was late, nearly or quite dark. They took me into the corner of the room; —— sat on the table by the window, but could not tell me what was said between us —— and myself were not on very good terms just then. They then told me that ——, ——, and —— had been round to all the polls and had got ——'s majority reduced down so that about five hundred votes would beat him and elect ——. They said that we must do (meaning —— and ——) could make it, if we would give ——'s majority enough to elect him. They said —— and the others had reduced ——'s votes in the other Wards; all they thought would be stood; but they hoped to get some votes off in the Mission. I told them I would give a thousand dollars if I was would make my opponents beat; I told them I had pledged myself to —— and ——, that —— should have the benefit of every vote that was polled for him; that I wouldn't back out for a thousand dollars or any other sum, and then I couldn't remember I had already carried a paper to ——, on which I had signed his name in my own handwriting every vote that —— had received.

I think it must be a year or more ago that I was in Sacramento; I saw —— in the Orleans Hotel; he asked me to take a drink; afterwards went over to a gunsmith, and he took the cases of one of his pistols; I had fresh caps on, and I asked him what it was for; he told me he was going to take —— on the wing—shoot him; he said he had already tried him, and —— and —— in a speech at a meeting, and it had failed to hit or kill him.

He requested me to go over back with him to the Orleans, and we sat on a dry goods box and talked a long time; I told him he would surely be hung, and talked to him about his mother, and at last he began to cry, and the tears began to roll down his cheeks; and when I saw that I got his pistol away from him, and I took him with me down to the river bank and I fired the pistol into the water. I fired it all out of the cylinder; then we went to the steamboat, and I brought him with me down to San Francisco.

I went back to Sacramento in the next boat. I never had any difficulty with —— or —— before this, nor afterwards until about five months after, when I came down to San Francisco. They attempted to kill me with knives, and almost killed me. I know, at least I always thought, they did it because —— told him I wouldn't let him kill ——.

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, SACRAMENTO CITY, June 30, 1856.

Whereas, Satisfactory information has been received by me that combinations to resist the execution of legal process by force exist in the County of San Francisco, in this State, and that an unlawful organization, styling themselves the Vigilance Committee, have resisted by force the execution of criminal process, and that the power of said county has been exhausted and has not been sufficient to enable the Sheriff of said county to execute such process: Now, therefore, I, J. NEELY JOHNSON, Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power vested in me by the Constitution and the laws thereof, do hereby declare said County of San Francisco in a state of insurrection, and I hereby order and direct all of the Volunteer Militia Companies of the County of San Francisco, also all persons subject to military duty within said county, to report themselves for duty immediately to Major Gen. Wm. T. SHERMAN, commanding Second Division California Militia, to serve for such term in the performance of military duty under the command of said SHERMAN until disbanded from service by his orders. Also, that all Volunteer Military Companies now organized or which may be organized within the Third, Fourth and Fifth Military Divisions of this State; also all persons subject to military duty in said military divisions, do hold themselves in readiness to respond to and obey the orders of the Governor of this State, or said SHERMAN, for the performance of military duty in such manner, and at such time and place as may be directed by the Governor of this State. I furthermore order and direct that all associations, combinations or organizations whatsoever, in said county of San Francisco or elsewhere in this State, in opposition to, or in violation of, the laws thereof, more particularly an association known as the Vigilance Committee of San Francisco, to disband, and each and every individual thereof yield obedience to the Constitution and Laws of the State, the writs and processes of the Courts, and all legal orders of the officers of this State and of the County of San Francisco. (Signed) J. NEELY JOHNSON.

California Markets.

SAN FRANCISCO, Wednesday, June 4, 1856.

During the past fortnight Trade has been moderate, but very uniform. Our citizens have given much of their time and attention to the great local question—the reformation and correction of the evils caused by the loose and equivocal administration of our laws.

Our receipts of Merchandise continue very heavy, but, in view of the comparatively small number of vessels now on the way, holders continue firm, and rates are very well maintained.

BREADSTUFFS have attracted less attention, and sales to the Interior are very light, but prices continue firm. The ship Carrier Dove has taken on board 17,041 bbls. FLOUR for Melbourne. The Alexander takes 10,000 bbls. to Sidney, and the Trident has an order for 450 tons for same place. Shipments are also made to China, &c. These, with the fact that our crops are in part a failure, give confidence to holders that they will realize good prices on stocks in hand, but we would advise our friends abroad not to predicate on high prices for future shipments hither. We quote domestic at $12 50@$13 ⅌ bbl., Gallego and Haxall, $13 50, and Corn Meal, $8 ⅌ bbl. Wheat has been taken up at $4 25@$4 50 ⅌ bbl. for Brandywine.

COFFEE—Has remained quiet and unchanged. Considerable parcels have come to hand from Manila and Java, but no important sales have been made. We quote Rio at 12½@13, Costa Rica 14, Manila 14; Java 14@15. Present stocks in market about 5,611,000 lbs., viz.: 1,580,000 lbs. Rio; 570,000 lbs. Manila; 750,000 lbs. Java, and 650,000 lbs. Sundries—generally broken lots—Costa Rica, &c.

COATS—Were somewhat dealt in after sailing of last steamer, and prices were nominally $22 50@$22 50 ⅌ ton for Lackawanna, but some parcels being offered, the price gave way to $21@$22, and is now unsettled. The stoppage of the Nicaragua Steamship Line has had a material influence on the price and prospects of Coal.

CHEESE—Have been pretty freely dealt in at previous rates, 7½c.@9½c. for ordinary to fair, and 10c.@11c. for choice. No sales of Sperm—nominally 40c.@41c.

COCOANUT—Sales small stock and assorted Manila at 15½c.@16c., ⅌ M. Stocks heavy.

COTTON—Domestic goods are unchanged. Brown Drills and sheetings at 8½c.@8¾c.

CURRANT—Restinduke has come to hand very freely, and is very dull at $8 15@$8 ⅌ bbl.

FISH—Cod, prime quality, in drums, is worth 6c.@6½c.—in fair demand. No. 3 Mackerel, in half bbls., $8 25@$8 75; No. 1, Lotta, $3 75@$4. Fat, No. 2, pay best.

OILS—Sales 7,500 gallons Crude Polar at 75c.@80c.; 3,000 gallons boiled Linseed at $1 25@$1 35, in time; 1,000 cases Marseilles Olive at $4 25@$4 37½ ⅌ doz. Olive have been heavy during past fortnight. "Flagniol" is the favorite mark.

PROVISIONS—Have come to hand in considerable quantities, and have been freely dealt in. Prices are generally well maintained, and prospects very fair. Pork has been taken very readily at $23@$24 for Mess, and $25@$26 for Clear. Hams are very active, at 14c.@16c. for choice, in brine, and 8c.@9c. for "Bullings." Bacon Sides are in fair request, at 8½c.@9½c. for extra Clear, in bulk. Lard has slightly declined—prices lower at 10½c.@11c., and 10c.@10½c. at 10½c.@10c. Butter is firm, but quiet, at 20c.@21½c. for choice New-York, in double packages. Cheese is nominally 10c. for choice Ohio, in tins. No sales reported.

RICE—Has commanded much attention, and fluctuated considerably. "Cavalier" is in very light supply and small relaxing needs at 6½c. Ohine, Java and Manila have come to hand in large parcels, and, there now being on the way from China 12 vessels, (aggregating near [illegible] tons burthen,) with large parcels of Rice in each of them, we must expect a decline and continued low prices. In Carolina Rice but prime lots are scarce and in request. Stock of all grades, [illegible] about 2,000,000 lbs.

SUGAR—Have come to hand in large parcels, and, with very light demand, prices are nominal.

SYRUPS—Have come in very freely, but prices have remained firm, and the tendency is slightly upward. Refined is quoted nominally for new in quality at 19½c. for bbls., and 19½c. for half bbls., cash. New-Orleans, fair, 11c., in bbls.; Ohine, No. 1, 8½c.; Cave, No. 10, 8c.@8½c. Total present stocks of raw sugar in market is about 5,718,000 lbs., viz.: 40,000 lbs. New-Orleans, 1,097,000 lbs. Java, 2,400,000 lbs. Ohine, 200,000 lbs. Manila, and 300,000 lbs. L. I., and sundries. Stocks of refined estimated variously from 12,000 to 20,000 bbls.

SPIRITS—Are very quiet. American Whisky dull at 28½c.@30c., stocks immense. American Brandy, 16c.

TOBACCO—Sales—White, worth 10@11 in half-bbls.; Olill Bayes, 8½@9½, in sacks. Dried Apples are slow sale at [illegible] in half-bbls.

[illegible]

[illegible] supply. Matches in sound wood have in excessive supply and dull at 50@60 ⅌ gross. Oysters in cans in good demand and sales regular at 8½@10½ ⅌ dozen. Pickles and preserved ginger goods still accumulating and very dull sale. Yeast Powders—Preston's and Merrill's in good demand at [illegible] ⅌ gross.

EXCHANGE—Is unsettled, though bills proposed by some parties to advance rates, in consequence of the advance in specie freights to New-York. Prime bills are now 3 ⅌ cent. prem. for sight on New-York and par for 90 days—on London 4½d.

FREIGHTS—The Sunday Times has loaded 17,841 bbls. Flour for Melbourne at $1 15@$1 25 ⅌ bbl., and the Alexander takes 10,000 bbls. at $1 ⅌ bbl. to Sydney. Ship Star of the Union is chartered, to load here for New-York at $12,000 and all expenses paid. The Lodoski sails this week for New-York with full cargo.

At the Eagle Hotel, Oakland, May 27, by Rev. Samuel B. Bell, John B. Tussing, Esq., to Miss Elizabeth Mace, of New-Orleans.

At the Parsonage of the M. E. Church, in San Jose, on May 26, by Rev. P. T. Cool, Mr. Samuel P. Gumser, of San Francisco, to Miss Sarah F. Sanor, of Santa Clara.

In Marysville, May 29, by Rev. E. B. Wilsworth, Louis R. Lull, editor of the Marysville Herald, to Miss Josephine P., daughter of L. W. Ransom, of Marysville.

In Downieville, May 25, by Rev. W. C. Pond, John A. Rollings to Miss Annie Maria Langton

[illegible] by the commission of outrages which to [illegible] have, and which fully justify [illegible] the culpability of the natives and of the authorities, as well as the extreme inability of this Government to protect the Isthmus and the passengers and treasure against the lawless negro depredators who infest it.

Two French vessels of war have visited our port—the Eldorado and Lancelot; the former has sailed for Puerto Arenas, and the latter remains here, having the St. Marys company. As yet no United States vessels of war have reached Kingston, except the Susquehanna, which touched in there on the 7th instant, and after remaining a few hours, sailed for San Juan, without even sending a boat ashore, very much to the chagrin of every American there.

The French Consul has got himself into disgrace here among his countrymen, and the officers of the French vessel of war, by the duplicity of his conduct recently, respecting the late pleasures. He has already been removed from this post by his Government, and is to proceed soon to Cobija. His absence will not be regretted.

The Governor gave a ball here recently in honor of the French vessel of war in port, to which the commander and officers of the St. Marys, as well as every foreigner in the place, were invited; as might be expected, not a single foreigner attended, except two, who are, I believe, both naturalized citizens of this country. It was a sad cut to the Governor, but it served him right, for it was a poor time to establish his popularity by a public rejoicing so soon after he had been the means of sacrificing the lives of so many of our countrymen.

By the recent mails from Bogota, we have received a law, passed in Congress and approved by the Senate, taxing our mails twenty cents an ounce for the privilege of crossing the Isthmus—this would amount to the snug little sum of two and a half millions annually, taking the last six months as an average, but I suspect uncle Sam will scarcely stand being fleeced so heavily, especially as the law appears to be in direct opposition both to the Treaty and the Railroad Contract.

We have not much local news here, as there is nothing doing except in politics,—the elections are to come off in a few days, and I should not be surprised to see a grand row, if the whites give any opposition to the success of the negroes in putting forward their candidates. The fact is, we have a regular nigger Government on the Isthmus at present, and it is likely to become rather more so by and by.

We had a break in the general monotony a few evenings since by a private theatrical performance at the residence of the British Consul, Wm. Penny, Esq., which came off in excellent style, and was the best thing of the kind I ever attended here.

The Railroad Company are busy putting up their new iron bridges—the large one over the Gatun River will shortly be completed, and will be a fine structure. That over the Chagres River has not been commenced yet, though it is about time it was up.

The British Steam Navigation Company are, I fear, about to move their agency to Callao on the 20th inst., after which time the days of sailing of their steamers hence will be altered to the 18th and 27th.

The negroes continue to hold their nightly meetings unmolested outside the walls, where they freely discuss the overthrow of white rule on the Isthmus.

From Costa Rica, we learn that the cholera is raging throughout that country. Baron Bulow, the commander of part of the forces which invaded Nicaragua, was cut off by it, and out of the 2,500 troops under charge of Mora, who marched upon Rivas, but 400 returned to their homes, the majority having fallen victims to this terrible scourge.

Our Southern news is of no great interest.

The Republic of Chili continues in peace; a Treaty of Peace has been concluded with the Argentine Republic. A treaty fixing the Consular relations between Chili and this country has been exchanged. The line of railroad from Valparaiso to Santiago will be opened on the 18th September as far as Limache.

The Rousaurr family are succeeding remarkably well in Valparaiso, and are already taking steps to erect a new theatre there. The Corn and Provision markets are unusually high. Congress meets on the 1st June.

In Bolivia peace has been effectually established. The yellow fever was making some progress in the provinces of Oneagues and Muneca.

From Peru we learn that the yellow fever was disappearing. The Congress has removed from Lima to Chorillos, on account of the sickness. A law of amnesty has been issued recognizing the various ranks of the persons serving under the Echenique Administration, and granting their pensions. Fresh extraordinary powers for six months have been accorded to General Castilla, strengthening his Dictatorship with authorization to imprison suspicious persons, search private dwellings, suspend judges, &c.

Revolutionary movements continue to break forth, and there was no stability in the existing state of things.

The editor of the Panameno, of this city, died on the night of the 17th instant, after a lingering illness. Hasta Luego.

NEWS FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

TREATY WITH THE ARGENTINE CONFEDERATION—CONSULAR RELATIONS WITH NEW-GRANADA—RAILWAYS—MOVEMENT IN THE MINT—REVISION OF THE PENAL CODE—MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer arrived at Panama on the 19th of June, with advices from Valparaiso to the 15th of May.

The Republic of Chili continues enjoying the advantages of tranquillity.

The important treaty of friendship and commerce, which establishes the most ample mercantile liberty between Chili and the Argentine Confederation, has been duly exchanged in the capital, and is to be henceforth considered as a law in both countries.

The treaty fixing the Consular relations between this Republic and New-Granada was also exchanged on the 9th. The Commissioners for this important act were Sr. D. Antonio Varas, Minister of State, and D. Andres Larrea, General Consul of New-Granada. Both representatives, desirous of adding a new tie to the friendly intercourse which binds the two countries, availed themselves of this opportunity for urging the President to grant a full pardon to Sr. Juan Antonio Ayrsemena, a native of New-Granada, who had been condemned to death for account of taking part in the horrible mutiny of Juan Fernandez, and who was actually expiating his crime in the penitentiary, the sentence passed on him having been commuted.

As to material progress, we can announce, with security, that the line of the Valparaiso and Santiago Railway, as far as the town of Limache, will be opened to the public on the 18th of September next. The principal difficulties of the work are now at an end, and there two points, such as the great bridge which it has been necessary to construct, and without which it was impossible to give impulse to the following work. All requisite measures being taken to surmount these obstacles, without sparing any sacrifices, the works along the rest of the line will advance as rapidly as the public and the Directors may desire.

The movement in the Mint, during the month of April last, has been as follows:

Gold coined	$166,625 00
Bullion in process	594 435 00
Bullion on hand	495,000 00
Advance on bullion	75,000 00
Paid on advance	75,610 16
Old coin received	162,615 27

A society of a peculiar capacity proposes to write a general history of the moral and material progress of Chili, showing it in every light, as the best answer that can be made to such as publish false accounts of the country's situation, viewing it through the distorting medium of their prejudices.

"The work of Mr. Gilliss, U. S. Navy," says a Valparaiso journal, "presents this great defect, which is very strange in him, as he had the best opportunities of studying our customs, and yet he has preferred misrepresenting them. His stories have given rise to the general indignation of both natives and foreigners in the country, and they have been reckoned as a libel, which obscures all the merit his scientific operations here may have possessed."

Senor Dn. Manuel Carvallo, ex-Minister of Chili in Washington, has been honored by his Government with the charge of compiling the penal code of the Republic, and he has already presented the first book, treating of crimes and punishments in general. Great changes are not introduced in the code, but a remarkable classification is made of the punishments adopted, which, in itself, considerably betters our penal system.

The Municipality of Santiago, desirous of lighting the streets of the Capital with gas, has invited the several companies who would obtain the privilege to present proposals, fixing the 15th of June next for the decision—the proposals to be based on a calculation of 400 lights, and the promise to obtain from Congress authorization for the introduction, duty free, of all instruments and machinery requisite for the undertaking, also for extending the privilege to a great number of years, if these which the present law allows should not be considered sufficient.

Nothing remarkable has taken place in mining industry. Corn and other articles of first necessity and national produce, continue at high prices in the market.

The session of Congress will be opened on the 1st of June, and several important measures tending to promote the welfare of the country will be presented for its consideration.

Bolivia.

RESTORATION OF PEACE—RAVAGES BY YELLOW FEVER, ETC.

Peace has been completely established in this Republic. Gen. Cordoba's Administration proves, up to the present moment, worthy of the confidence of the nation. The Committee for compiling the Code of Laws has finished all Books save the 1st of Arts, and several projects for internal improvements are mentioned as engrossing the attention of Government and the various towns. The yellow fever was making some ravages in the Provinces of Oneagues and Muneca. The cities so visited by Government during the last revolutionary attempt have been rewarded with a medal of honor.

TRADE—PROCEEDINGS OF THE NATIONAL CONVENTION—CASTILLA'S DICTATORSHIP.

The trade with Bolivia is still active, notwithstanding the extensive importations effected in la Paz and Cochabamba. Importations in Arica have been made by the following vessels: Bele, Odessa from Bordeaux; Mary Cushing, from Boston; and Ann, from Callao. The Ann [illegible], from Boston, imported a cargo of wheat. The Mary had been dispatched for Hamburg with produce of the country, and the Resorte was to sail in a few days. There was an important arrival of produce from the interior; particularly copper bertilla, and the value of this article in Arica amounted to 50,000 qq.

The fever had disappeared from Iquique.

The National Convention continued its sessions, and, on account of the fever prevalent in Lima, it had removed to the bathing place of Chorrillos together with the Government, but not before increasing the members' daily allowance from eight to twelve dollars. A law of complete amnesty has been issued, ordering the ranks of such persons as served under General Echenique's Administration to be recognized, granting them pensions, and also awarding such military pensions as the law allows to the widows and children of those who perished in defence of the Government during the campaign. All the stupid decrees of the Provisory Government are therefore annulled.

But, at the same time, fresh extraordinary powers for six months have been accorded to General Castilla, strengthening his dictatorship with authorization to imprison persons, search private dwellings, suspend the functions of judges, &c. Some military disturbances had taken place in Chincha and Chiclayo, but they had been put down.

However, revolutionary attempts continued to burst forth, and no confidence was reposed in the stability of the present state of things.

SALE OF REAL PROPERTY—PROCEEDINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE—HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS FOR HONOLULU.

We have dates from Honolulu to the 10th of May, one week later.

A series of resolutions was passed the House of Representatives, complimenting Hon. W. L. Lee.

Four town lots had been sold at auction at good prices. The property belonged to the estate of S. Reynolds. The "Punchard lot" sold for $12,985; the "Store lot" for $6,880; the "Crown lot" for $5,500; the "Pitman lot" for $1,000, and the buildings on all the lots for $2,860.

A law has been passed for the building of an inter-island steamer, at a cost not to exceed $60,000.

A charter has been given to a company under the name of the "Hawaiian Flower Company."

The Legislature had voted $6,000 for the improvement of Honolulu Harbor.

WALKER ENDEAVORING TO TREAT WITH SAN SALVADOR—CONDITION OF THE NICARAGUAN ARMY—COL. KENNEY—NEWS FROM COSTA RICA—DEATH OF BARON BULOW.

The British West India mail steamship Clyde reached Aspinwall late on the evening of the 6th instant, with dates from Greytown to the 5th. There was no communication with Costa Rica, and consequently there are no mails from that Republic. A report was brought by the Clyde that a revolution had broken out among the Costa Ricans, but the correctness of this we very much doubt.

It is stated that Walker had sent a special Commissioner to Salvador to treat with that State, but that he was sent back immediately, without effecting anything satisfactory.

We have been unable to learn the present whereabouts of Walker.

A schooner with forces for the Walker army had reached Greytown from New-Orleans.

Provisions continue scarce and high at the latter place.

Several of Walker's army who had left their leader, came down to Aspinwall on the Clyde, we are told, in most miserable condition.

Col. Kenney remains in Greytown, and is making no progress towards improving our condition.

Affairs generally, so far as known, were in a wretched state throughout the country.

The Eurydice still remained at her post in the harbor of San Juan del Norte. The Daniel Webster had reached there from Aspinwall on the 5th inst.

We have no late news from Costa Rica beyond the intelligence that the army was disbanded, and the cholera was raging throughout the State.

The death of Baron Bulow, Chief Engineer of the Republic, is reported. The Baron died of cholera, whilst on his return with the army from Nicaragua.

News from China.

TRADE—FAILURE OF NYE BROTHERS AND COMPANY—THE REBELLION—DEPREDATIONS OF CHINESE PIRATES—HORRIBLE MASSACRE AND CANNIBALISM.

Advices from Hong Kong are to the 16th of April. At Canton trade is on the revival, and although there are various rumors of anarchy existing in the surrounding country, it will not probably tend to the interruption of foreign commerce. The main object of certain insurgents is the punishment of the head men and leaders of villages for past cruelties.

The Friend of China says that the tea exports from Shanghae has fallen off in one year twelve millions of pounds; the exportation having been directed to the port of Fuh-chow-fu. Mr. Sherman, editor of the North China Herald, is dead.

The failure of Nye Brothers & Co. is upon a far grander scale than was at first supposed, and in amount has rarely been equaled. At a meeting held at Canton on the 9th instant, the assignees, on data furnished by Mr. Nye himself, report the "approximate estimates of the assets of the firm to be about $1,400,061 61, and the liabilities to be about $3,564,021 19. It is, however, to be remembered that these totals are only apparent, and it may the amount of the liabilities will be increased, and that of the assets lessened, when final accounts are received from various distant correspondents."

A letter from Shanghae dated April 6:

Rumors and reports from the north and west continue to be very contradictory, and the true state of things in the central provinces it is impossible for any one at this distance to detail. In many places disorder is the order of the day. Now we have reports of sixty thousand men who had risen in rebellion, coming to the Imperial Generals to lay down their arms; next we have rumors of their making overtures to join the insurrection; and again, of their taking an independent attitude. All these reports are, perhaps, true in part.

At Nanking and Chin-kiang no decisive advantages would seem to have been gained by the Emperor's forces; and great multitudes of the people are distressed alike by both Imperialists and Insurgents. At Sa-chan some apprehension of disturbance exists.

In and around Shanghae peace and quiet prevail; commerce is reviving, and the prospects of the husbandmen are very encouraging. Piracies have decreased, but many freebooters are still abroad, every now and then a few of them fall into the hands of the authorities, and are very summarily dealt with. Some of these wretched creatures were marched out the city last week, and executed on the south side.

The following list of depredations by Chinese pirates, is published:

On the 18th of March, a fishing boat was plundered off Ty-chow.

On the 14th, a number of men landed at Tchingwan, plundered a house, and carried off a sampan with two men.

On the 19th, a stone boat was seized by pirates, and taken to Pak-loo, near the Lema, where two of her crew escaped by jumping overboard.

On the 20th, a fishing boat was taken by two junks off Chek-chu, and plundered. Three of her crew were badly wounded.

The same day, a market boat was plundered of her cargo of pigs, eggs, &c., by two junks in the Lyu-moon.

A pullaway boat was cut adrift from astern of a vessel in harbor on the night of the 24th, and pillaged.

On the 27th, lorcha No. 20 was attacked and plundered by five pirate junks in the Cap-suy-moon.

On the 1st April, a fishing boat was captured near Tam-koon-tow, by three pirate junks.

On the 9th, another fishing boat, with her crew, was carried off by two pirate junks, from the same neighborhood.

The same day, a trader was plundered about midday off Soo-kun-poo; and a comprador's boat was seized at the same place about 2 A. M., taken to the Cap-suy-moon, and plundered.

From the Manilla Advertiser of Feb. 23, we take the following brief account of the massacre of part of the crew of a China junk by the Andaman Islanders:

A China junk, named Fut Goon, bound from Pinang to the Nicobars and Bassein, arrived off town on Tuesday evening last, with the following melancholy story. She left Pinang on the 2d of January last for the above places, with a crew of thirteen men. Strong currents and contrary winds prevailing, she could not make the Nicobars, and even lost her reckoning for Bassein. When out of the latitude of the Nicobars, she came upon the Little Andaman Islands, where the whole crew attempted to affect a landing for water. Out of the thirteen men, three landed, while the others remained in the boat. The savages, hitherto hid, now sprang upon their helpless victims, tore them limb from limb, and then devoured them. Those in the boat seeing this showed off to the junk, and put sail direct for this port.

THE JAMESTOWN AT MADEIRA—LIST OF HER OFFICERS—AFFAIRS AT MADEIRA.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

United States Ship Jamestown,
Funchal, Madeira, Sunday, May 18, 1856.

This ship arrived here on the 16th inst., twenty days from Porto Praya, having encountered strong N. E. trade winds for the most of the passage. The United States brig Dolphin left Porto Praya on the 20th ult., bound on a cruise down the coast of Africa. Officers and crew all well.

The United States ship St. Louis, was at Porto Praya when we left, and was expected to leave on or about the 26th ult. for this place. Officers and crew all well.

The Island of Madeira looks very well, but the grape crop is still a failure. They have suffered from very heavy rains during the past Winter, and the weather has been unusually cold. Most of the strangers have returned home, and the next packet will take what few remain. There are a few American ladies here. No American vessels in port. The weather now is delightful, and everything looks green and fresh.

The following is a list of the officers of the Jamestown:

Thomas Crabbe, Commander-in-Chief; James H. Ward, Commander; Jas. F. Armstrong, Lieutenant, (flag;) T. H. Patterson, Lieutenant; Geo. M. Ransom, Lieutenant; Julian Myers, Lieutenant; John R. Hart, Lieutenant; F. Williams, Lieutenant; Geo. Clymer, Fleet Surgeon; T. M. Taylor, Purser; W. L. Shuttleworth, Captain of Marines; U. W. Thomas, Chaplain; S. R. Swain, Assistant Surgeon; John L. Heylin, Commodore's Secretary; H. B. Johnson, Commander's Clerk; John McKinley, Acting Boatswain; Wm. Cape, Gunner; James R. Smith, Carpenter; Wm. N. Mault, Sailmaker; H. B. Conklin, Master Mate; V. H. Voorhees, Master Mate; C. W. Lawrence, Master Mate.

News from the West Indies.

We have full files of Kingston, Jamaica, papers to the 11th of June. The intelligence is not of the slightest interest.

On the 27th of May the Governor of Jamaica left in the steamer for England. Major General Bell was sworn in as Lieutenant Governor to administer the affairs of the Island during Sir Henry's absence.

The celebration of peace and the anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday had been celebrated with great demonstrations of joy.

The severity of the May seasons had abated. The damage sustained by the heavy rains in all parts of the island had been incalculable. To ascertain its full amount will occupy much time. Fine weather had set in. Strong sea—or if we may be permitted the license of coining a word—anti-fever breezes prevailed beneficial to general health.

News from Havana.

☞ The U. S. Mail steamship Philadelphia, Capt. McGowan, from Havana, arrived at this port on Saturday. The Philadelphia left New-Orleans June 20, arrived at Havana June 23, and left at 7½ P. M. of same day for this port. The Philadelphia landed $75,000 in silver at Havana, and brings $100,000 in silver to this port. The health of Havana still continues good. The U. S. Mail steamship Empire City arrived at Havana at 6 P. M. of the 22d inst.

News from New-Mexico.

DIFFICULTY WITH THE NAVAJO NATION—PROBABILITIES OF A SETTLEMENT—INDIAN DEPREDATIONS—MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

We have files of the Santa Fé Gazette to the 31st May.

The general court-martial for the trial of Captain Scammon and Lieut. Morrison adjourned on the 30th April, and the members left for their homes.

Major Kendrick and the Navajo agent, Capt. Dodge, have had several conferences with the principal men of the Navajo nation, in relation to the outrages near Pueraco, committed by a party of their tribe. They profess to be willing to make good the loss of sheep, which, it will be recollected, amounted to some ten or twelve thousand, a part of which, however, has already been returned. They offered to give three peons for the three Mexicans killed. This offer, of course, could not be entertained, and the impression was left that with neither premise would they comply, unless upon the exhibition of a large military force in their country.

The perpetrators of the robbery and murders are among the principal men of the nation, or nearly allied to them, and it is thought in consequence the demand for their surrender will not be complied with until the nation is thoroughly humbled by measures of the most stringent character. The expeditions heretofore made by the American forces into the Navajo country have been so abortive that another of a similar character will do more harm than good; and it is very probable that if inadequate attempts are made against them now, the Utahs will make common cause with them. Should the Navajos, however, be thoroughly humbled, rich and powerful as they are known to be, the example will not be lost on all the other tribes in New-Mexico. We trust, however, they may see the necessity of complying with the requisitions made upon them, by a timely surrender of the criminals—by so doing much waste of property and loss of life will be spared them.

The warriors of the Navajo nation capable of taking the field number at least two thousand men, and we think the military strength of this department should be increased, particularly in the mounted arm of the service.

The Gazette of the 26th says:—

We suppose there is now no longer a hope that the difficulty with the Navajos will be settled without a resort to military force, for, baffled of their complying with the demand made upon them recently, they have committed another offence of a similar character. On the night of the 15th inst., a party of them attacked the sheep rancho of Jose Ignacio Montoya, near Peak Blanco, killed the mayor-domo and wounded four others, one of them mortally. They also took from the rancho three hundred ewes, the property of Montoya. The Indians were followed by a party of twenty-five Mexicans, and overtaken at El Valle; two of them killed, and nearly all the sheep recovered. The scalps of the Indians were brought in as vouchers for the faithful execution of the work.

From this it will be seen that blood has been shed on both sides, in consequence of which, we think there is not the least probability of an amicable arrangement of the difficulty. A question with the Navajos of a similar character existed when Gov. Merriwether came into the Territory, for which his Excellency thought proper, with a dash of the pen, or wave of hand, to relieve the Indians of all accountability. On the 3d of May, 1855, some three months before the arrival of Gov. Merriwether, the Navajos killed Ramon Martin, near Chamita, robbed the rancho and took with them all the stock and two Mexican boys.

The military at Santa Fé have commenced the construction of new quarters for the officers and men. Capt. Easton was also constructing quarters for the Quartermaster's Department. The work upon the State House was about being commenced, and work upon the Penitentiary and the Surveyor General's office was also commenced.

The Grand Jury of the County of Bernalillo have presented Gov. Merriwether for his inefficient management of the Territory.

On the 5th inst., Gen. Garland, with his staff, Major Thornton, Captain Easton and Lieut. Craig, left for Fort Stanton. Major Smith, Paymaster, will probably intersect the party at Albuquerque on his return from Fort Defiance, and accompany it to Stanton.

A general-court martial will be held at Fort Stanton immediately after the arrival there of the above-named officers.

We understand Gen. Garland has detailed the following mounted troops, company "F," First Dragoons, under the command of Lieut. Mecrie, to take post at Fort Thorn; company "I" same regiment, Brevet-Major Grier, Lieuts. Williams and Parker, to take post at Fort Union.

The latter company awaiting the arrival at Fort Thorn of company F, which has been detailed to leave Fort Union, its present station, at once.

We also learn that the stations of Doctors Leatherman and Irwin have been changed; the former transferred from Fort Defiance to Fort Union, the latter from Fort Union to Fort Defiance.

No news from Major Kendrick since our last issue, as to the condition of affairs with the Navajos. We still hope that all difficulties with that nation may be amicably arranged, for a war with them, at this time, would be a serious misfortune.

The Gazette of the 17th says: Lieuts. Johnson and Irwin arrived in town on the 10th inst. The former on his way to Taos, the latter to Fort Defiance.

We learn that Major Smith, Paymaster, reached Albuquerque on the 10th, returning from Fort Defiance, and intended joining Gen. Garland, who left Albuquerque that day for Fort Stanton.

Company F, 1st dragoons, under the command of Lieut. Mecrie, passed Delgado's on the 13th inst., en route for Fort Thorn.

Information has been received from Major Kendrick, commanding Fort Defiance, as late as the 2d inst., who represents the condition of affairs with the Navajos, growing out of the raid committed by a party of that nation on the Pecos in March last, as unchanged. The Indians have not, as yet, complied with their promise to turn over all the sheep taken at that time, although a part has been delivered, nor is it believed they will do so, unless upon the exhibition of a strong military force in their country; for the sentiment prevails among the Peladoes, who constitute the larger portion of the nation, that their power is superior to that of the United States.

It is not strange that this should be their honest conviction, from the fact that the combined military strength ever witnessed by them, in point of numbers, falls short of their own strength in the proportion of about one to six.

The Gazette of the 31st of May says:

Lieut. John Adams, First Dragoons, arrived in the city on the 31st inst., with his family, on his way to the States.

Lieut. Adams is detailed on the general recruiting service for the army, and will continue on such duty for two years. Major Thorn, Captain Lee, Lieutenant, of First Dragoons, Hunter and Johnson, Third Infantry, are also detailed for the same duty, and will leave the territory in that to report themselves at Carlisle Barracks and Fort Columbus, New-York, by the 20th of July next.

General Garland and party returned from Fort Stanton on the 24th inst. While there the General had an interview with Manuelito, a Mescalero chief, whom he met with about eighty of his people, most, if not all, children. Manuelito expressed himself very decidedly against the whites, and said that the act killed by a short time ago, was killed in revenge of his man who were found on the act by Marrubio, but that the man had never returned to him, nor did he know what had become of them.

Lieut. Craig arrived on the 26th inst., via Albuquerque. He came from Albuquerque to this city in seven hours and a half—distance seventy miles. Good traveling.

On the 14th inst., it was reported to Capt. Burgwin, commanding Los Lunas, that the Indians were plundering on the Puerco. Thinking it probable they might be found there, the Captain took Lieut. Eaznaz, and with twelve dragoons, his entire available force, went to the point where they were said to be, viz., about twenty-five miles in the direction of the Sierra Ladronos. After crossing the Puerco the Captain found the trail of about twenty Indians driving off cows, but too far ahead for him to be able to overtake them without pursuing into the Indian country, and his force was too small to venture so far. The Indians told the Mexicans that they were Membres Apaches. There were two parties of about twenty each, they killed two cows, and ran off about thirty belonging to the people living below Los Lunas and Belen.

Information from Major Kendrick has been received as late as the 16th inst. The Navajos are planting quite as much now as in former years.

The Major has appointed the last day of May as the time when he shall expect to receive compensation for the stolen sheep mentioned in our former issues, for which purpose he is to meet the chief men of the nation at Laguna Negra. In the meantime his efforts for a restoration of the stolen sheep will continue to be pressed.

Colonel Miles arrived in the city on the 24th inst., and Colonel Fountleroy on the 26th. They are members of the Court-Martial in the case of Major Blake.

Senator Seward on Free Discussion.

The Attack of Rust upon Horace Greeley.

In the Senate on Wednesday, an animated debate took place between Mr. Johnson, of Arkansas, and Mr. Seward, arising from the vindication which the former gentleman deemed proper to make of the conduct of his colleague Rust, in the assault upon Mr. Greeley. Mr. Johnson said of Rust:

"He is a member of the House of Representatives of this country. He is my colleague in that branch of Congress. He is a gentleman, and is certainly one of the most uniformly magnanimous, generous, and highly honorable and true men that lives upon the whole wide earth. I have known him from my earliest manhood, and during his earliest youth, and this is my experience with reference to him during the whole time."

Mr. Seward replied to Mr. Johnson's vindication of Rust:

"In the course of the debate yesterday, it will be recollected that the honorable Senator from Virginia, (Mr. Hunter,) alluding to the matter of Mr. Sumner, stated as a matter of grievance against the State of Massachusetts, that she had converted what had been a personal difficulty, into a public matter, or she had taken a course which had that tendency. I went on to show that Massachusetts was not so responsible for having converted what he had called a personal quarrel into a public one, and that the fact of the assault on Mr. Sumner having become a public question, or subject of so great magnitude, resulted from its nature, circumstances, and antecedents, and a foresight of the consequences which must follow it. By way of illustrating rapidly as thoughts occurred to my mind, its nature and circumstances, antecedents, and consequences of that assault, I spoke of the fact that an editor of a newspaper had been assaulted without sufficient preliminary notice to put him on his personal defence, and beaten down in one of the avenues leading to the Capitol, for the assumed offence of words written concerning what had been done by a member of the House of Representatives in his official capacity. * * * *

I remember, I was going on to illustrate, two or three years ago, when the Kansas-Nebraska Bill was before the Senate, I entertained a very bad opinion of that bill—an opinion about as bad as any Senator or citizen can entertain of a measure which it is his duty to oppose. In addressing the Senate, I found it necessary to characterize the measure in strong terms; but I guarded myself against imputing any such character whatever to the author of the measure or its motives. I did so, precisely for the reason that I had no doubt myself at the time, that the author had no unpatriotic or unjust motives, and I conceded to him, precisely as I claimed for myself, integrity of motive, as I do every other person engaged in public duties. I freely concede the same purity of motives to the colleague of the Senator (Mr. Rust) in the transaction referred to, although that transaction is not at all remembered by me. He is entitled by his position to that acknowledgment. I can readily believe his character to be just what is given him by the Senator, for I know he is a man of truth and high honor, while I am personally unacquainted with his colleague (Mr. Rust.) I have [illegible] not sanctioned the article of which he complains, and I have no reason for doing so now.

That is my understanding of this whole case. In the first place, taking the account which I had received of the transaction, the assault made was without sufficient preliminary notice. As a question of fact, if the circumstances remain as then understood, my opinion is the same still. If not so—if the facts are misunderstood, it will be modified according to the circumstances if more or other notice than I had understood was given.

In regard to the other branch of the question, I consider the article of which complaint is made of the editor of the Tribune as being in bad taste, excessive, extravagant and severe. I regarded it, however, as not an attack on the motives or the character of the member who had introduced the measure which was condemned, although I may have been in error on that subject. So I thought that the assault on him was a sufficient excuse in that way. Beyond that, the honorable Senator knows, and everybody knows, that it is my judgment, my opinion, my rule of action, that the interests of justice, of right, and of truth, require freedom of the press, and freedom of speech and debate, and that whatever errors may be committed in the exercise of that freedom, they are counterbalanced in their effects by the good which results from discussion. I think, as all the world knows I do, that it is not right for any person, citizen, or Member of Congress, or in any official station, to resort to personal retaliation for the vindication of character assailed in debate, or through the press.

This being so, the transaction appeared to me one which was inexcusable. I referred to the fact, however, as a historical one. I neither made nor implied, nor intended, any reflection on the assailant in that case, but simply gave it as it was understood by me, as one of the antecedent circumstances by operation of which, with other causes, deeper and wider interest had been excited concerning the transaction between Mr. Sumner and Mr. Brooks."

Bill for the Suppression of Polygamy.

The following bill, for the Suppression of Polygamy in the Territories of the United States, was introduced by Mr. Morrill, of Vt., in the House of Representatives, on Thursday. The penalties are severe:

A Bill to punish and prevent the practice of polygamy in the Territories of the United States and other places over which the United States have exclusive jurisdiction.

Whereas, It is admitted that polygamy is permitted by the municipal regulations of one of the Territories of this Union, and is sought to be justified on the ground that this abomination in a Christian country is a religious rite of the inhabitants of said Territory; and whereas, no principle of self-government or citizen sovereignty can require or justify the practice of such moral pollution; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That if any person or persons, being married and an inhabitant of any Territory of the United States or other place over which the United States possess exclusive jurisdiction, shall intermarry with any persons, or cohabit with any person or persons, or live with any person or persons as partners acknowledging conjugal relations, the former husband or wife being alive, he, she or they so offending shall, on conviction thereof, pay a fine not exceeding $500, and be imprisoned not less than two years nor more than five years; Provided, nevertheless, that this section, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to any person or persons whose husband or wife shall absent him or herself one from the other for the space of five years, the one of them not knowing the other to be living within that time, nor to any person or persons who shall be at the time of such marriage divorced by competent authority, or to any person or persons whose former marriage, by sentence of competent authority, shall have been declared void.

FREMONT AND TRUTH.

MR. FILLMORE'S POSITION—SPEECHES IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Vans.

At Newburg, on Thursday, in reply to a complimentary address, Mr. Fillmore said as follows:

Fellow-Citizens of Newburg: Accept my cordial thanks for the unexpected but hearty greeting. My strength is not equal to the occasion of addressing you on the subject of the Presidential contest, but I am bound to say a few words, without any solicitation, to defend their standard-bearer in the contest, against that I question not but that I am proud of the distinction. I confess, also, that I am a devoted and unalterable friend of the Union. I have an hereditary to Sweigness; I have witnessed their deplorable condition in the old country, and God forbid that I should add to their suffering by rendering them an asylum in this. I would throw the gates wide open, and invite the oppressed of every land to partake of the blessings of our country. I would only exclude from this emigration the pauper and the criminal. I would give the emigrant every aid, but while I did this, I would, for their sakes as well as ours, declare that Americans should rule America. [Cheers.] They should have the benefit of equal laws—but neither their education nor knowledge of our institutions qualify them to govern America. [Applause.] The failure of every attempt to establish a free Government in Europe is demonstrative of this fact. But if we value the blessings which Providence has so bountifully showered upon us, it becomes every American to stand by the Constitution of this country, and to resolve that, independent of all foreign influence, Americans shall and will rule America. [Loud and long applause.]

I feel, fellow-citizens, that I need hardly allude to the importance of maintaining this Union. I see the National flags floating from yonder heights, which marks the consecrated spot where Washington had his head-quarters. There he performed an act of moral heroism, before which the bravest deeds of Alexander pale, and with which the greatest achievements of Bonaparte are not to be compared. [Immense cheering.] It was there, on that sacred spot, now shaded by the flag of a free Republic, that Washington refused a crown. [Great applause.] It was there that the officers of the Army, after our independence had been achieved, made him the offer of a crown, which he indignantly repelled. I am sure that I need not urge upon you who live in sight of that flag, the importance or duty of following the Farewell Advice of the Father of his Country, to maintain the Union of the States as the safeguard of our liberties at home and the bulwarks of our defence against attacks from abroad. [Cheers.]

Again I thank you most sincerely for this cordial welcome to my native soil. [Cheers.]

MR. FILLMORE AT ALBANY—HIS DENUNCIATION OF THE REPUBLICANS.

At Albany, Mr. Fillmore responded to an address from Mayor Perry in the following terms:

Mr. Mayor and Fellow-Citizens: This overwhelming demonstration of congratulation and welcome almost deprives me of the power of speech. Here nearly thirty years ago, I commenced my political career. In this building I first saw a Legislative body in session—(Cheers)—but at that time it never entered into the aspirations of my heart that I should ever receive such a welcome as this, in the capital of my native State. [Cheers.]

You have been pleased, Sir, to allude to my former services and my probable course if I should be again called to the position of Chief Magistrate of the nation. [Cheers.] You all know that when I was called to the executive chair by a bereavement which overwhelmed the nation with grief, that the country was unfortunately agitated from one end to the other upon the all-exciting subject of Slavery. It was then, Sir, that I felt it my duty to rise above every sectional prejudice and look to the welfare of the whole nation. [Applause.] I was compelled to a certain extent to overcome long-cherished prejudices, and disregard party claims. [Great and prolonged applause.] But in doing this, Sir, I did no more than was done by many other well meaning men than myself. I was by no means the sole instrument, under Providence, in harmonizing those difficulties. [Applause.] There was at that time noble, independent, high-souled men, in both Houses of Congress, belonging to both the great political parties of the country,—Whigs and Democrats,—who spurned the character of selfish party leaders, [cheers,] and rallied around my Administration, in support of the great measures which restored peace to an agitated and distracted country. [Cheers.] By the blessings of Divine Providence, our efforts were crowned with signal success, [cheers,] and when I left the Presidential chair, the whole nation was prosperous and contented, and our relations with all foreign nations were of the most amicable kind. [Cheers.] The cloud that hung upon the horizon was dissipated; but where are we now? Alas! Threatened at home with civil war, and from abroad with a rupture with our peaceful relations. I shall not seek to trace the causes of this change. These are the facts, and it is for you to ponder upon them. Of the present Administration I have nothing to say, and can appreciate the difficulties of administering this Government, and if the present executive and his supporters have with good intention and honest hearts made a mistake, I hope God may forgive them as I do. [Loud and prolonged applause.] But if there be those who have brought these calamities upon the country for selfish or ambitious objects, it is your duty, fellow-citizens, to hold them to a strict responsibility.

The agitation which disturbed the peace of the country in 1850 was unavoidable. It was brought upon us by the acquisition of new territory, for the government of which it was necessary to provide Territorial Administrations. But it is for you to say whether the present agitation, which distracts the country and threatens us with civil war, has not been recklessly and wantonly produced by the adoption of a measure to aid in personal advancement rather than in any public good. [Cheers.]

Sir, you have been pleased to say that I have the union of these States at heart. This, Sir, is most true, for if there is one object dearer to me than another, it is the unity, prosperity, and glory of this great Republic—and I confess, frankly, Sir, that I fear it is in danger. I say nothing of any particular section, much less of the several candidates before the people. I presume they are all honorable men. But, Sir, what do we see? An exasperated feeling between the North and the South, on the most exciting of all topics, resulting in bloodshed and armed military array.

But this is not all, Sir. We see a political party, nominating candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency, selected for the first time from the Free-States alone, with the avowed purpose of electing these candidates by suffrages of one part of the Union only, to rule over the whole United States. Can it be possible that those who are engaged in such a measure can have seriously reflected upon the consequences which must inevitably follow in case of success? [Cheers.] Can they have the madness or the folly to believe that our Southern brethren would submit to be governed by such a Chief Magistrate? [Cheers.] Would he be required to follow the same rule prescribed by those who elected him in making his appointments? If a man living south of Mason and Dixon's line be not worthy to be President or Vice-President, would it be proper to select one from the same quarter, as one of his Cabinet Council, or to represent the nation in a foreign country? Or, indeed, to collect the revenue, or administer the laws of the United States? If not, what new rule is the President to adopt in selecting men for office, that the people themselves discard in selecting him? These are serious, but practical questions, and in order to appreciate them fully, it is only necessary to turn the tables upon ourselves. Suppose that the South having a majority of the Electoral votes, should declare that they would only have slaveholders for President and Vice-President; and should elect such by their exclusive suffrages to rule over us at the North. Do you think we would submit to it? No, not for a moment. [Applause.] And do you believe that your Southern brethren are less sensitive on this subject than you are, or less jealous of their rights? [Tremendous cheering.] If you do, let me tell you that you are mistaken. And, therefore, you must see that if this sectional party succeeds, it leads inevitably to the destruction of this beautiful fabric reared by our forefathers, cemented by their blood, and bequeathed to us as a priceless inheritance.

I tell you, my friends, that I speak warmly on this subject, for I feel that we are in danger. I am determined to make a clean breast of it. I

In the House of Representatives on Saturday, the entire session was occupied in the consideration of the bill for the admission of Kansas into the Union. A motion to lay it on the table was negatived by a vote of 101 to 70, and it was made the first business in order to-day.

The News by the Illinois.

By the arrival of the mail steamship Illinois, we have received full details of the important events that have recently occurred in San Francisco. The excitement consequent upon the great popular rising, reported by previous steamers, continued unabated. As every one anticipated, CASEY and COLE, the murderers of KING and RICHARDSON, were executed by order of the Vigilance Committee, and, as if to render the proceeding more awfully impressive, it was done on the same day that the murdered KING was consigned to his grave. The labors of the Committee did not end here. Numerous arrests followed, and among others, that of the notorious YANKEE SULLIVAN, who, he could divine from the dread, committed suicide in his cell. According to latest advices the other accused parties had been shipped to Australia. In the meantime an opposition to the Vigilance Committee was organized. This party called for a mass meeting in the Plaza of those who were in favor of maintaining "the supremacy of the Constitution and the laws of the State;" but when the time arrived the speakers were received with such a storm of hisses and groans that it was found impossible to proceed, and the meeting turned out a complete failure. The popular feeling in San Francisco, and indeed, throughout the State, is unmistakable. It seems to be the general desire, with but slight exception, that the Vigilance Committee should make some further examples, and continue its organization until the purification of the ballot box shall have been secured and a radical reform shall have been wrought in the City Government. The Governor has issued a proclamation declaring the County of San Francisco to be in a state of insurrection, ordering the Committee to disband, and calling out the militia, but it does not appear that much respect or any obedience has been shown to this official document. The particulars of all these events, as given in the graphic and comprehensive letter of our San Francisco correspondent, and in the accounts by local journals transferred to our columns, will be read with deep interest.

There is nothing new to record in the history of the Indian outbreak in Oregon. For the present, at least, hostilities have been suspended. In the absence of active operations and more exciting themes, our correspondent furnishes us with a sketch of some past events in the war, and at the same time draws a deplorable picture of the condition to which these disastrous troubles have reduced this lately flourishing Territory.

In our columns this morning there will also be found some miscellaneous and interesting news from South America, Central America, New-Granada, the Sandwich Islands, and China. The intelligence received from Nicaragua by way of Panama is brief and not very specific as to dates or facts. The point at which WALKER's head-quarters were established was not known. San Salvador, it is asserted, had refused to treat with WALKER, and had sent back his envoy. Cholera was making fearful havoc in Costa Rica, Baron BULOW being among the number of its victims.

The "Revolution" in California.

The summary proceedings of the Vigilance Committee in San Francisco may very properly be called a revolution, though there is nothing of a rebellious or political character in the constitution of that revolutionary tribunal. It was not against the Law that the Committee rebelled, but against the lawyers. The quiet, respectable, and conservative inhabitants of San Francisco had become disgusted with the conduct of the lawyers and the judiciary, and were justly alarmed at the impunity with which wealthy villains committed their nefarious crimes. The atrocious assassination of one of the leading citizens of the State who had courageously exposed the rascalities of some of the disreputable roughs who had fastened themselves upon the Gold State, aroused a spirit of revenge, and awaked the long dormant power which had once before been put forth in the defence of the public safety, and the Committee of Vigilance immediately regained its existence, and summary justice was dealt to two great offenders against the law of God and man. Of course all right thinking men will condemn Lynch Law, but, when there is no other law on which peaceable citizens can rely for protection, what shall be done? It is difficult to decide at so great a distance from the scene of disturbance; and it is unfair to make comparisons between a new State, composed of such an ill-sorted and turbulent a population as they have to contend with in California, and an old and comparatively well-regulated community as our own. A murder by a mob is no less a murder than if committed by an individual, and the Committee of Vigilance, in the eye of the Law, are as guilty as the wretched men whom they put out of existence. But the Law's eye often blinks at offences which the morally proper, and it will do so in this case. The immediate effect of the action of the Committee of Vigilance will be to rid California of a gang of desperadoes, and to exert a wholesome influence in the next elections, which may materially change the political complexion of the State. But we doubt if criminal lawyers will exhibit any finer eagerness to defend wealthy criminals than they have done before.

Mr. Fillmore's Position.

For the first time in the canvass,—for the first time indeed since he ceased to be President,—Mr. FILLMORE in his speech at Albany on Friday last, referred to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, the agitation which the aggressions of Slavery have aroused, and the uprising of the people of the Free States against them. His position as he has now defined it, is precisely what it has been represented to be by those who conceded the purity of his personal character, but who could not regard him as the man for President in the present crisis. He has no word of rebuke for the domineering insolence, and the audacious ambition of the champions of Slavery extension. He "has nothing to say of the present Administration:" though he intimates that possibly the repeal of the Missouri Compromise may have been effected "to aid in personal advancement rather than in any public good." Upon these points he is either silent or apologetic. But he denounces openly and with emphasis the great movement of Freedom in self-defence. He brands the uprising of the people of the Free States, against the tyranny they have suffered and the still greater tyranny with which they are threatened, as a treasonable movement, certain to end in a dissolution of the Union. He goes farther than this. He denies the right of the people of the Union to elect a President, except with the concurrence and assent of the Slaveholding States. He declares that if the Free States should vote unanimously for FREMONT, the South would not submit. "Can the Republicans," he says, "have the madness or the folly to believe that our Southern brethren would submit to be governed by such a Chief Magistrate?" That a man in Mr. FILLMORE's position should ask such a question as this, is certainly astounding. Pray, why should "our Southern brethren" not submit? Mr. FILLMORE goes beyond the South itself in uttering threats on its behalf. Not even the most rabid champion of Slavery, in or out of Congress, has ever yet hinted at such a course of action as Mr. FILLMORE proclaims and justifies. Not a solitary Southern paper has intimated that the South will not "submit" if Col. FREMONT should be elected President. It is mortifying that any Northern man should be found pusillanimous enough to proclaim such a sentiment in advance.

Mr. FILLMORE attempts to justify this most extraordinary position by an appeal to the North:

"Suppose that the South having a majority of the electoral votes, should declare that they would only have Slaveholders for President and Vice-President, and should elect such by their exclusive suffrages to rule over us at the North. Do you think we would submit to it? No, not for a moment."

Upon what basis Mr. FILLMORE makes this remarkable declaration, we find it impossible to conjecture. Most assuredly the North has never given any occasion for so bold an impeachment of its loyalty to the Union and the Constitution. On the contrary, it has uniformly and promptly acquiesced in every enactment constitutionally made, however repugnant to its interests and its rights. And we are confident that the last thought that would enter the mind of any Northern man, if the South having the power should elect a Southern President, would be resistance to his authority. Mr. FILLMORE has no warrant in fact, or in common sense, for his most extraordinary declaration that the North would not submit. And he has just as little for the assertion that the South would not submit to the election of a President by the votes of the Free States alone. If the South desire to prevent such an exclusive choice, let them join in the election of FREMONT themselves. We have the same right to ask this of them, that they have to demand of us the abandonment of the man who represents our principles and will protect our rights.

But Mr. FILLMORE desires to know how a President so elected can select his Cabinet and distribute the patronage of the Government. He intimates that he can appoint nobody from a slaveholding State. We should like to know why not. Does Mr FILLMORE apprehend that nobody can be found in the South who would take office under such a President? His own experience should have taught him better. Neither he nor any other man will live long enough to see fat Federal offices go begging in Virginia, or in any of the Southern States. But we will tell Mr. FILLMORE what would be the effect of the election of a Republican President upon the South, in this respect. It would bring into the Federal service a class of men in the Southern States who are now excluded by the Slaveholding Oligarchy, because they cannot be made the tools of its audacious schemes. It would thus instantly release the Southern mind from the thraldom in which it has so long been held. And the result of such a bestowal of the Executive patronage would be to create a sound and healthy public sentiment in the Southern States, upon this and every other subject. Men then would dare to speak their sentiments, and to act upon their own convictions of duty; and, instead of witnessing a compulsory and cringing worship of Slavery, as the only institution worth preserving in this republic, we should see it taking its proper place:—we should see it fairly canvassed by Southern men:—and we might then hope for a restoration of common sense in the discussion of its political, social and economical relations. The cry of dissolution, which Mr. FILLMORE seeks to revive, has ceased to have any terror for Northern men. They have seen the base uses it has been made to serve, and are no longer to be deceived or misled by it. It is the stale device of men seeking under cover of it to carry Slavery into every Territory and its place in all Federal power, to the hands of Slaveholders, to be wielded for the promotion of their interests and the accomplishment of their ends.

We are glad that Mr. FILLMORE has made this frank and open avowal of his deep hostility to the movement of the Free States against the aggressions and the extension of Slavery. It puts it out of the power of his supporters to confuse the issue they were beginning to play with some success, of representing him as equally reliable with FREMONT upon this great issue.

The Popular Will.

While ministers of both this country and England chafe over small differences and diplomatic distinctions, it is pleasant to feel that the heart of the people of both nations beats in unison. Whatever rulers may think or do, it is evident that the people of America and England, not the mere bar-room politicians, but the men who make the sinew and create the glory of both lands, are determined that there shall be peace. For two nations who, whatever may be their little family quarrels, stand in the frontage ground of the world's freedom, and maintain the banners of free altars, free thought and free speech over the earth, to go to war would be not only a folly but a madness. At such a conflict the despots of the earth might well clap their hands and sing a pean, for it would do more in one short year to check the march of progress than all their intrigues and machinations for a century could effect. Indeed, this conviction appears to have struck home to the heart of every man who loves the happiness and advancement of his kind.

In England we find that while ministers are hesitating what action to pursue, and parties are endeavoring to turn every difficulty to some selfish account, the people are stepping forward and clutching with giant grasp the matter into their own keeping. Mr. ROBERTSON GLADSTONE, one of the most distinguished merchants and men in England, a near relative of the eminent statesman of that name, and second to none in commercial standing, has taken the lead, and at the head of his brother merchants in Liverpool, has entered a protest against any rupture with this country. As the steamer left the fire was spreading. Meetings had been called of the men of Manchester and Leeds and Birmingham—the brave toilers out of whose sweat and sinew England has hewn her wealth, and we have little doubt that in a few weeks the working classes from one end of England to the other will have built up a wall of fire around the bond of a common commerce which now unites their country and this, from which no ministers can snatch it.

From some knowledge of opinion in this country, we have little doubt that this feeling is reciprocated by the same class here. There is no greater blunder than that made by so many travelling and surface-seeing Englishmen, of mistaking the noisy froth on the top of the stream for the calm, still current of public opinion which flows silently but powerfully beneath. The talk of the bar-rooms of the United States is one thing, the thought of the homes of the United States is another. And among this latter, in which the opinion of a nation ever dwells, there is a strong and solemn sense, we believe, of the evil not alone to the two countries, but to the world at large of a war between the United States and England. Noisy politicians, to whom tumult of any kind is life, never count the cost, but men who love their country and kind, and have some stake in the prosperity of both, have counted it and know what such a war would mean.

It were well, however, that this feeling found expression. We feel sure it has only to be called on to come forth. England has spoken through her commercial and working classes, and magnanimously taken the lead. Why not our commercial and working classes imitate the example, and send forth an echoing protest on this side against all mention of war? It is not from any apprehension of a difference between the two countries, we make this suggestion, for we have none. To dream, for a moment, that two great brother nations could be drawn into war, and make a holiday for despots, merely for the mistakes of half-a-dozen over-zealous or bungling officials, would be the most absurd of delusions. It is as an expression of the real feeling of the commercial and working classes, that we would rejoice in such a protest as that we now commend to our merchant and industrial community.

The Course of Col. Benton.

Certain of our more imaginative cotemporaries are struggling severely to show that the determination of Col. BENTON to support the Cincinnati ticket, is a serious blow to the hopes of Republicanism. They assume that the nomination of Col. FREMONT was made with special reference to securing his "gallant relative," and that the non-adhesion of the latter overthrows our most elaborate calculations. It needs but a word to extinguish this nonsense. There was never the slightest reason to believe that Mr. BENTON would advocate the election of Col. FREMONT to the Presidential chair. He had never intimated any disposition to do so. There were a thousand reasons that obviously dictated a posture of absolute neutrality from first to last, and on that neutrality, no doubt, many counted, not as an element of strength in the Republican ticket, but as a direct, logical result of the position upon political issues which Mr. BENTON has occupied for the ten years past, and as a natural tribute to his own consistency. Disappointment in this particular may painfully lessen confidence in the wisdom of the venerable statesman, but need bate no jot of any true man's heart or hope in the cause of which the younger and more vigorous mind of his son-in-law is the expositor.

Outside of Missouri, it is, perhaps, superfluous to say, the influence of Col. BENTON's position is purely moral and exemplary. Let the reader test the matter thoroughly by perusing the speech of the great Missourian, given in the DAILY TIMES of Friday, a speech designed to serve as the overture to the canvass in Missouri, for the choice of Governor and Congressmen. It is a masterly arraignment of the interior and external policy of the present administration, its single point excepting, every act meeting its due censure, and the whole coming in for as violent invective as ever passed the ex-Senator's lips in his more sanguine and impulsive years.

The abrogation of the Missouri Compromise, the bombardment of Greytown, the summary treatment of filibusterism, the generally aggressive and war-provoking conduct of diplomatic representatives, the use and distribution of patronage, the infectious corruption of every department of Government, the evils and abuses of party conventions; all these points are worked with the hand of a master, strong in grouping and composition of his subjects, and enforced with so hearty an earnestness and eloquence that the indignant reader feels himself hurried and heated along to the unavoidable conclusion that the party and the files concerned in these manifold treasons against the republic and its welfare, should be at once and forever hurled from power; that a period should forthwith be put to a many-headed policy so pregnant with mischief; that the platform and the party upon it were better sunk ten thousand fathoms deep, than floated into the capital and the Presidential mansion. Such, however, is not the argument or the meaning of Colonel BENTON. He turns a short corner when actually in broad sight of his destination. From these damning postulates he insanely concludes that the good of the country requires the government to remain in the same mischievous hands; that all the honors and emoluments in the gift of the people should be poured upon the devoted heads of the wrong doers and their accessories; that JAMES BUCHANAN, who declares himself merged in the Cincinnati Platform, with its cordial indorsement of the Pierce Administration, of the Compromise violation, of the plans and conspiracies of Filibusterism, of the system of official corruption and caucus management, of federal assumptions of State rights, is the only candidate before the people deserving their support and confidence. It is wholly out of the question for any sane man to adopt any such violent non sequitur. Herein the most devoted admirer of the gallant old Colonel must decline to follow him. It is as if an Attorney-General, in summing up an unanswerable case of high treason, deformed with murder, and treachery, and wantonness of the most repulsive shapes, should appeal to the Jury after his outburst of indignant declamation, not to punish the criminal with the utmost rigor of the law, but to renew his opportunities for the commission of crime, to furnish his hands with the deadly weapon, and lay bare the defenceless throats of the people before him.

In the bounds of Missouri, of course, it matters not at all for the cause of Republicanism what Col. BENTON may say or do. There the cause of Freedom has nothing whatever to lose, or to hope for. We know very well, that by acting there in behalf of Mr. BUCHANAN, the veteran orator is not acting against Col. FREMONT, were he inclined to do so. We know that his estimate of his distinguished son-in-law's abilities and fitness for the most elevated and exacting duties, is too frequently recorded to admit of denial or modification at this late date. These things are enough to know. And for the rest we shall do well if, pardoning this unaccountable eccentricity, we turn our faces reverently from the old man, veiling the last sacrifice to party prejudice in the memory of past services and past independence.

Home Affairs.

Now that all our great political parties have got through with their saturnalia for the Summer, at least as far as the City is concerned, and Mr. FILLMORE has had his reception and gone West, and there is nothing to distract the attention of the Common Council in the shape of a public show, we hope that the Aldermen and Councilmen will have a little time to bestow upon the sanitary condition of the City which is of infinitely greater importance to our citizens than any of the prominent subjects of discussion which have recently monopolized public attention. The City, at present, is unusually healthy, for the season, but its condition is not such as to hold out encouraging expectations that it will remain so much longer, as the intensity of the heat increases; and every consideration of humanity, and regard for the property of our citizens demand that instant steps should be taken to put the streets in a state to resist the almost certain visitation of infectious diseases. It is not owing to any precautions or any sanitary regulations on the part of our City authorities that we have been spared from the spread of pestilential diseases, but to the splendid natural advantages we possess in the position of our City; advantages which ignorance, misrule, and bad laws cannot wholly neutralize. Mayor WOOD, in his last message, was at great pains to exhibit our lack of proper defences against the approach of a hostile fleet; but the enemy we have most cause to fear the approach of, comes in an unseen and insidious form, and will find no defences against his approach, but every encouragement for his visitation.

It would be well for some of our City legislators to make an estimate of what the cost would be to the City if the yellow fever should make its appearance in our midst even for a week, and then compare with it the trifling expenditure required to keep the City in so cleanly a condition that the spread of disease would not be possible. But, putting aside the possibility of such a dread calamity as the introduction of the yellow fever, there are other diseases, and fevers nearly as fatal, which are the sure result of a lack of cleanliness, which should be guarded against. And, above all is it the duty of our City authorities that the streets are put in such a condition that the people shall not be driven from their houses to escape a fetid atmosphere, which is destructive of comfort even if it be not deadly in its immediate effects on health. The extreme heat of the past three days makes it imperatively necessary that there should be immediate steps towards a thorough purification of the City.

If the [illegible] of the book-[illegible] some time of the [illegible] of Mr. FREMONT and [illegible] reference to the [illegible] of book [illegible] stock supplied to [illegible] Five or six of our largest book [illegible] have drawn their presses day and night [illegible] extended biographies [illegible] of the Rocky Mountains. [illegible] crowd the columns of the daily [illegible] engaged upon the biography of JAMES BUCHANAN, and where that eminently exciting and romantic story may be found by the anxious inquirer, are points upon which the newspaper furnishes no information; and we are left to the supposition that nobody wants what nobody supplies. It is very easy to suggest that everybody knows the great facts in the career of the illustrious Pennsylvanian, and that no recital of them is needed. But the truth is precisely otherwise. Nobody we have yet encountered pretends to know one great fact in Mr. BUCHANAN's whole public existence. The world thirsts to discover what single notable act is associated with his name; what signal thing he has achieved to entitle him to the gratitude and confidence of the country; whereon is based the reputation for wise and conservative statesmanship, on the strength of which he is addressed to the people. His life is known, but all these things are unknown quantities in the equation of his political career, and so must remain.

Col. FREMONT, with his bold undertakings and gallant, useful, and practical achievements, has, for ten years past, filled the public eye, and attracted the public admiration. Enough has been seen of his stirring and various career to create an appetite for minuter detail. Hence the call for biographies. They may, with propriety, bear the title of "The Life and Public Services of FREMONT;" the Life of BUCHANAN can, with no propriety, assume the latter phrase. All these things the bookmaker understands, and the reader understands; and so ten thousand biographies of the "Great Explorator" will be called for, where one pamphlet Life of the Politician will suffice.

Scoggs for Fillmore.

Among the most important acquisitions of the Fillmore Party, during the past week, are the Commercial Advertiser, of this City, and General GERRAUD SCOGGS, of Buffalo. In the course of General SCOGGS' letter of adhesion, he makes the following kind remarks, in alluding to the American Convention in New-York:

"Whilst they all, as I believe, esteem and honor Mr. FILLMORE as much as any other man, and have as much, and many of them more confidence in him than any other man that could be named, they honestly believed that there was no chance for an election."

"Amusing."

Our grave cotemporary, the Commercial Advertiser, says its editorial embarrassments in choosing a presidential candidate were "amusing, as much as annoying." The embarrassments of the Commercial have been rather amusing to others, but we had no suspicion of their being amusing to itself.

The waters of the Mississippi and Lake Michigan were connected last week, through the Fox River improvement. The Apollo, the first steamer that has made the passage, made her appearance at Green Bay on Monday. The guests marched ashore under a salvo of artillery, and went in procession to the United States Hotel, where the Mayor of the city made a speech. The Green Bay people are greatly elated at the prospects of enlarged trade and new facilities of intercourse which this improvement opens up to them.

The Fourth of July Common Council Committees—The Committees Determined to have a Fourth of July.

The Joint Committee of the Aldermen and Councilmen, appointed to arrange for the celebration of the Fourth of July, were called to have another meeting last Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There was a full attendance of the Councilmen of the Committee, but only one of the Aldermen was present. It was resolved not to wait for more Aldermen, but to proceed on their own hook, and under their previous organization, despite the Aldermen's threats not to come in unless a different organization was agreed upon. Councilman BARKER took the chair, and in doing so, suggested that a few Aldermen, by their pride and contumacy, could not postpone the Fourth of July, nor turn aside the determination of invincibles like themselves. He said that they would hear the report of Committees upon which a majority of Councilmen had been appointed, and where the Aldermen were in the majority and no reports were ready, they would make new appointments from themselves.

Councilman COOPER, from the Committee on Fireworks, reported that, they had selected the following places for the exhibition of fireworks, and agreed to pay the amounts affixed for the same:

City Hall Park	$600
Tompkins Square	450
Madison-square	400
East Broadway and Grand-st	300
Five Points-square	300
Jackson-square	400
Hamilton-square	300
Lamartine-square	300
Yorkville	250
Carmansville	150
Mount Morris	300
High Bridge	150

The Committee to engage music for the different parks, and to see to the erection of platforms for the musicians, being completed of Aldermen who were absent, the Committee on Fireworks, on motion, was authorized to take these duties upon themselves. The Chairman was commissioned to have printed 2,000 tickets of admission to the City Hall on the evening of the Fourth, to be distributed among the members of the Common Council and their friends.

It was voted to give $200 to the Veterans for their Fourth, when resolutions were passed, requesting the Comptroller to pay no bills incurred for the celebration of the Fourth, unless signed by a majority of the Joint Committee, and that no moneys be appropriated for refreshments.

An adjournment took place to Wednesday, to complete further arrangements.

The Inundation in France.

A meeting was held on Saturday afternoon, at DELMONICO's, corner of Chambers-street and Broadway, of the Committee of twelve appointed at the meeting of French residents of the City held on Friday to raise funds for the relief of their countrymen suffering from the late inundation in France. Mr. M. G. LEFFERTS presided. It was stated that Mayor WOOD had been called upon, to ascertain whether he would do anything officially in aid of the object for which they had convened. He had promised his personal assistance, but upon consultation with the French Consul he did not think it necessary at present to take any official action. The following address Committee was appointed to cooperate with their own Committee in raising funds:

Fernando Wood,	Edward J. Warren,
Chas. W. Foster,	John Wilmerding,
A. Woldrum,	Isaac Bell, Jr.,
Ogden Haggerty,	Lewis Ostrin,
Samuel Fox,	L. Delmonico,
Joseph Fowler,	Leopold Bierwith.

A Committee, consisting of the officers of the meeting, was chosen to wait on the Mayor and apprise him of his appointment, with instructions empowering him to add such names as he may fit.

The moneys contributed should be sent in or handed in by the 15th of July, that they might be forwarded in the next steamer to France.

NEW-YORK CITY.

How to Get a Better House.

It is fair to presume, reader, if you live in a house of your own, that you would like a little better one—one with higher walls, larger parlors, smaller bedrooms, and the modern conveniences more conveniently arranged. If you do not have a better one, it is your own fault, for certainly you have every facility for obtaining your wish, and this is the way.

First, get your house insured—well insured,—up, at least, to its full value, in a safe company. Then, get an Irish servant girl,—preach to her twice a week on the necessity of being careful about setting the house on fire. This will show well in your mind before the Fire-Marshal. Have a pine box to put ashes in, placed in the back basement. Some slovenly people keep their ash pan or barrel out in the yard, but this is very unsightly. Put it under a wooden staircase. You can easily conceive the advantages of such a method. About bed time charge the girl to take a candle in and see that there is no fire in the barrel. If she is sleepy, she will not be likely to see the fire, and the candle may do the job for you. If you have gas in the house, and you perceive a smell, overhaul the meter with a lighted candle. This sometimes answers an excellent purpose. Insist upon having the stoves cleaned before the servant goes to bed at night—it saves so much time kindling fire in the morning. Have plenty of glass lamps for burning fluid; tell the girl to be very careful in the use of them. Of course, she will be. But still, it is not impossible she may trip in descending the stairway, when the lamp will break and the burning fluid scattered over the floor will be pretty likely to secure you a change of residence. Charge all the members of your family to fill their lamps only at daylight, but encourage them to make it the last job done in the day, which will insure their being filled six nights out of seven after dark. Thousands of new houses are obtained by this simple precaution. Use a two or three-tubed lamp, and if the wick falls out of one of them, keep dark about it. When the fluid gets low and the hot vapor begins to rise through the empty tube, you may confidently calculate upon an explosion which shall be purely accidental, of course.

But much can be done with your gas chandeliers and brackets. Before the first fly comes and long after the last one has gone, keep the chandeliers draped in some thin gauze stuff for the sake of preserving them in handsome condition. Where taste will tolerate it, festoon the walls above with cut paper. This makes the chances ten times greater.

The best place for gas brackets, as every lady will tell you, is by the side of the pier glass, coming out from the window sill; the windows of course you will decorate with lace curtains, oil shades, and so forth. The moment you have lighted the gas in one of these brackets, hear someone call from below, and don't stop to see whether the window is open far enough for the balmy south wind to drift the lace curtain directly into the flame. If your house is as well constructed for the purpose as most of them are, you may be sure that you will have a visit from the firemen before bed-time. A joint in the bracket is a great convenience, specially it it be one which allows the gas to burn unheeded when it is crooked up against the wood-work.

Much can be done with matches. Wax matches burning on wooden mantels bring a great deal of money out of the hands of the avaricious insurance companies into the pockets of the people. So never be without them, and encourage their use. If rats and mice are plenty, leave the matches lying around loosely and they may do the job for you.

But the common wooden matches are still more invaluable. Burn them in wooden boxes. It is a good thing to let the baby have them to build log cabins with. When you strike a light with them never mind where you throw the burning ends. It is well, if you have a wooden fireboard, to leave open the hole for the stove-pipe in it. If waste paper be thrown in there that will be a particularly good place for them. Leave loose matches lying on the chamber floors, in the kitchen, anywhere that they are likely to be trod upon with heavy shoes. When striking a light and the silver breaks, as many frequently will do in succession, don't look to see what becomes of the dipped end—presume that it has fallen upon the marble hearth, and do you hurry down to tea.

Remember, that to have the light shine directly in your eyes from gas-burners, is exceedingly injurious to the delicate organs of sight. Of course, you will fit up all the burners with shades. Some prefer glass, but glass costs something. Some prefer tin, but the ones can be broken after awhile. Better use paper shades. They are made for the purpose, are sometimes beautifully ornamented, and have served to give thousands of families new homes. If your house is heated by a furnace in the cellar, ask no questions as to the position of the registers, nor make any noise about it if the wood-work that surrounds them sometimes gets hot enough to boil eggs on. Don't be an old maid, prying into such minutiæ, and disturbing the sensibilities of the household.

Do you smoke? And have you never found how like stealing an hour from Heaven it is to lie upon your bed smoking a fragrant Havana until you fall asleep? Try it often—and, to make the grand result more sure be free with your matches, of which every pocket should have an abundant supply.

Encourage your women to read themselves asleep at night—it certainly is an enlightened enjoyment, and is quite likely to secure the new house, although the reading accomplished under such circumstances will be of no particular service to any body. During the summer avoid the folly of heating your walls by carrying your cooking-fire into the chimney. Better turn the stove-pipe out of the back window. It keeps the house cooler. A great deal can be done with stove-pipes. When one runs through a wooden partition don't use those ugly earthern cylinders nor sheets of tin, and, if possible, bring the paper hangings close up to the pipe on every side.

If you follow these rules, we greatly err if we do not truly prophesy, that before Summer is out, you will enjoy the pleasure of receiving a handsome policy upon your fire insurance premium.

And in these days of easy credit, you are no true son of a Yankee, if, with hard cash for your old house in hand, you cannot build as fine a one as you could desire, (with all the modern improvements,) and not a mortgage worth mentioning left to encumber it.

Litters for the Wounded.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Your suggestion of employing a spring cart, instead of a common cart, for the conveyance of the unfortunate laborer, so frequently wounded whilst engaged at the erection or demolition of buildings, might be greatly improved on by recommending the adoption of litters, one of which to be kept at each Station-house in the City. These litters, made of willows, like baskets, are in general use in the larger European cities, and provided with a mattress and curtains, and carried by the means of two long poles fastened to the sides of the litters and resting on the shoulders of four men. This simple method would prevent a great deal of suffering to the unfortunate victims of the numerous accidents occurring in our City, who are now jolted over the uneven pavement, and often exposed to a scorching sun or a pouring rain, as the writer had occasion to see three times during the last week. HUMANITY.

Mechanics' Institute.

A meeting was held, last evening, at the new rooms, No. 18 and 20 Fourth-avenue. An association was organized, styled the "Philosophical Society of the Mechanics' Institute." Mr. CLINTON ROSEVELT delivered the inaugural address, after which the following gentlemen were chosen officers—President, CLINTON ROSEVELT; First Vice-President, JAMES ROPERES; Second do., GEO. W. CLARK; Third do., J. B. WHITMAN; Corresponding Secretary, D. B. LOCKWOOD; Receiving Secretary, JOSEPH HATHORN. Regular meetings will be held on Monday evenings of each week.

Dinner to John Brougham!

On Thursday afternoon, a large number of American and Irish gentlemen, friends of Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM, the eminent actor and dramatist, gave him a sumptuous dinner at the Astor House, as a mark of their esteem for his professional merit and private worth, and to inaugurate his becoming lessee and manager of the Bowery Theatre. The Chair was occupied by RICHARD O'GORMAN, Esq., with JAMES T. STACE, Esq., as Vice-Chairman. The evening passed off very pleasantly, with any amount of lively speeches and entertaining songs.

☞ Keeping cool by means of large fans worked by steam is coming into general use in restaurants, which are apt to be uncomfortably warm, in stores where gas has to be burned by daylight, and in many offices that do not specially lack either daylight or fresh air. It is a capital arrangement.

ABDUCTED CHILD AND PARENTS—LITTLE MAGGIE HOUSE.

We published the fact some five weeks since, that a little girl, named Margaret House, had been abducted from the residence of her father, William House, at No. 118 MacDougal-street, by a German cabinet maker, named Martin Hateman alias Hoffman.

Little Maggie being well known in the neighborhood of her residence, her strange abduction created considerable excitement. Every effort was made by the police of this City to find the fugitive Hoffman, and restore little Maggie to her home, but their efforts were unavailing.

An advertisement in the TIMES and another paper of this City brought information the other day from a kind-hearted German at Cleveland, Ohio, that little Maggie and her abductor were then at that place. It so happened that the day this information was received a storm prevented any telegraphic communication with Cleveland, but Maggie's brother started at once for that place, but on his arrival there Hoffman had left, failing to meet his engagements with a cabinet-maker, for whom he had engaged to work.

He ascertained that his sister had been heard to express a desire to return to her parents, but was pacified by her abductor, since which nothing further has been heard of either.

Hoffman resided in this City some months. He speaks broken English, is short necked, with high, square shoulders, sandy hair, partially bald-headed, full beard and moustache, and with an unmistakable German look. His step is short and quick, and his whole manner bustling. He has a wife and two children in Berlin, Prussia.

Since his departure for this place many misdemeanors of which he has been guilty have been brought to light.

We have ascertained that at his first boarding-house in Cleveland, he told the family that little Maggie was his daughter, and on being asked how it was she only spoke English, and not German, he stammered, saying: "She is my step-daughter." Soon after this he took the child away, but since then the man has been seen in the streets of Cleveland with cabinet-makers' tools in his arms, which signifies that he is at work in that neighborhood.

The little girl sews and writes with the left hand, has auburn hair inclined to red, which she sometimes wears in curls, has blue eyes and very fair skin.

Before leaving the boarding-house, she expressed a wish to go back to New-York, but was pacified and hurried away "to be in time for the cars."

It is only reasonable to suppose that Maggie House, (the child referred to,) in her lonesomeness, must have written to her father, but she would not know the necessity of a stamp in prepayment, in which case her epistle would remain a dead letter. Will postmasters please note this? read such letter—communicate to the proper authorities, that Hoffman may be arrested and held, the child protected, and information conveyed to Messrs. Smith & Dodd, No. 188 Superior-street, Cleveland, Ohio—who would feel amply paid for the trouble they have been put to, could they see how the mother's heart appreciates their kindly aid and sympathy, to recover their lost Maggie.

A case seldom happens which appeals to the kind and good, with a stronger claim for the recovery of a lost, loved one, than the one we now record.

We are authorized to say, that any reasonable expense incurred by arresting Hoffman, protecting the little girl, or communicating, by telegraph, to William House, No. 118 McDougal-street, New-York, will be made good.

ANOTHER HOMICIDE—DEATH BY A BLOW FROM A BILLIARD CUE.

A homicide took place on Saturday evening at the saloon corner of Sixth-avenue and Twenty-first-street.

While a party of men were engaged at billiard-playing at the above place, about 8¾ o'clock, some words arose between Jacob Town and George Liston, when the latter struck Town a powerful blow on the temple with a billiard cue, knocking him senseless to the floor.

Town was at once removed to his residence, No. 94 West Twenty-fourth-street, where, despite medical aid, he died at 4¾ o'clock yesterday (Sunday) morning.

Liston was taken in custody by officer Farrington of the Twentieth Ward, and brought before Justice FLAMEREAU, of the Jefferson Market Police Court, who committed him to prison.

Town is a native of Germany.

The Coroner was notified, and the result of the inquisition will be known to-day.

DUST TIMES.

The Police Magistrates had a very large number of prisoners before them yesterday. Nearly all the charges, however, were of a trivial character, originating mostly from intoxication.

Miscellaneous.

THE CORONERS' SLATE.

The Coroners' slate had a dozen entries on it yesterday, and, as a consequence, the Coroners and their doctors had a hard day's work.

SUICIDE.

Among the inquests held was one upon the body of Edward Hunn, aged 60 years, who jumped into the River from the steamer King Philip, while being conveyed to Blackwell's Island as a vagrant. He attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor, on the 27th inst., at the corner of Elm and Pearl streets. He had no friends.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING.

James Belger, a child of eight years, while playing at the Amos-street dock, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, fell into the water and was drowned. The body was removed to the residence of his father, No. 196 Amos-street, where an inquest was held. A verdict in accordance with the facts was rendered.

The other inquests were not of public interest.

Decision in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

LIEN OF MATERIAL MEN—PRIORITIES—MORTGAGES IN POSSESSION—SHERIFFS.

George Burkbeck et al. vs. The Steamboat Alida.—The libel in this case was filed to recover for work, &c., done by the libelants in repairing the shaft of the steamer in August, 1855, while she was running on the North River.

The claim was opposed by a Receiver, appointed in an action in the New-York Superior Court, representing the owners, mortgagees in possession, and Sheriffs who had levied upon the boat; and the Receiver objected that the libelants could have no priority of lien either over mortgagees in possession, or over the Sheriffs who held her under their levies.

But the Court held that as the boat was by consent of the Sheriffs running in her regular employment, they could not be in a better position than the owners, as against whom the boat would be clearly liable for repairs ordered by the Master, as these were; although, as his Honor intimated, a different rule might prevail if the express notice of the levy had been brought home to the libelants.

The Court also held that mortgagees in possession had no higher rights than the owners of the boat; which were only enough to put the libelant upon proof of his claim and his lien—and as these were here established without contradiction, a decree was ordered for the libelant for $984, the amount of his bill with costs.

For libelant, Mr. Marbury. For the claimant, Mr. Bonney, the Receiver, in person, and Mr. Sherwood and Mr. Van Vleeck.

MARKET REPORTS.

Markets—Carefully reported for N. Y. Daily Times.

SATURDAY, June 28—6 P. M.

ASHES—Quiet, but firm. Stock in the Inspection Warehouse, to-day, 89 bbls. Pearls, and 483 bbls. Pots, in all 572 bbls.

BARK—The Philadelphia Commercial List of this morning, says that—"The demand for Quercitron Bark has fallen off, but prices are unchanged. Sales of 40 hhds. No. 1 at $35 ⅌ ton, but buyers now refuse to pay this figure. Tanners' Bark is dull, and prices have declined. Sales of Spanish at $14@$14 25 ⅌ cord, and Chestnut at $11."

COFFEE—Demand, moderate; prices, unchanged.

COTTON—Is inactive and irregular, parties still disagreeing about prices. Some factors are disposed to accept 11¼c. for Middling Uplands; 11⅜c.@11½c. for Middling Gulfs; and proportionate rates for other kinds, ⅌ lb., but purchasers are reluctant to pay so much.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market for State and Western Flour exhibits decidedly more vigor, with less extensive receipts, and a lively general demand. The sales since our last reach about 13,000 bbls., in lots, mainly at prices within the annexed range:

Superfine No. 2	$4 05@$4 25
Ordinary State	5 25@ 5 00
Straight State	5 00@ 5 25
Favorite and Extra State	5 25@ 5 50
Inferior to Good Michigan	5 00@ 5 40
Common to Good Indiana & Upper Lake	5 70@ 6 10
Common to Good Ohio	5 75@ 6 25
Fancy Michigan	5 50@ 5 70
Fancy Ohio	6 20@ 6 50
Extra Michigan	5 70@ 7 00
Extra Indiana and Wisconsin	6 10@ 7 25
Extra Ohio	6 25@ 8 19
Fancy Genesee	6 50@ 6 70
Extra Genesee	6 75@ 8 25
Extra Missouri	6 75@10 00

Canadian is improving, the sales since our last having amounted to about 1,600 bbls. Superfine to best Extra, mostly at $5 90@$6 ⅌ bbl. Southern is also doing better. The sales, since our last, comprise about 1,700 bbls. Mixed to Fancy and best Extra, at $6 50@$6 75, and $50 25 ⅌ bbl. Rye Flour is depressed and languid at $3 90@$4 25 for Fine and Superfine ⅌ bbl. Corn Meal is freely offered and is in pretty fair request at $3 90@$3 95 for Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Jersey, and $3 10@$3 20 for Brandywine, ⅌ bbl. The latter brings $15 in puncheons.

FRUIT—Appears quiet, at about former quotations. Sales were made, by auction, of 2,200 boxes Sicily Lemons at $1 12½@$1 31½, and 400 boxes Sicily Oranges at $1 56¼@$3 81¼ ⅌ box.

GRAIN—Wheat is brisker and a shade dearer, with sales reported since our last of about 72,000 bushels, including inferior to fair Canadian White, at $1 45@$1 67½; Western White at $1 40@$1 65; poor to choice Western Red at $1 30@$1 55; ordinary Genesee White at $1 60; and very good Southern White at $1 60 ⅌ bushel. Two handsome samples of new Wheat were exhibited on Change, to-day. One was from Jonesboro, Ill., and was considered a first-class article. The other was from North Carolina. It was deemed quite a favorable specimen. There were 19,500 bushels Rye sold at from 83c.@86c. ⅌ bushel. Oats are in good demand, and are generally worth 38c.@40c. for Ohio and Lake; 37c.@38c. for State; 34c.@37c. for Jersey; and 36c.@38c. for Southern, ⅌ bushel. Corn attracts considerable attention, at rising prices; supply of sound continues very moderate. The sales since our last amount to about 80,000 bushels at 46c.@48c. for unsound, heated and damp; 52c.@60c. for sound mixed Southern; 54c.@58c. for Southern yellow; 56c.@60c. for round yellow; 58c.@60c. for common to choice Southern white; 58c.@60c. for round white; and 59c.@60c. for sound Western mixed, ⅌ bushel.

HAY—There were 900 bales River purchased at 90c.@70c. ⅌ 100 lbs.

HAIR—The market is quiet, with a moderate demand from dealers. Sales are 26,000 lbs. Buenos Ayres mixed, on private terms.

HIDES—Mr. H. D. HULL says, that the market continues firm, with an upward tendency in prices, and all the Hides which have been offered at last week's prices have been readily taken by the trade, and on some descriptions an advance of 1c. ⅌ lb has been paid. But few are now offering at present prices as importers feel confident of obtaining an advance in the Fall on the Hides in store. Transactions, although moderate, have been fully equal to the receipts, which have been on a very limited scale. A parcel of 9,600 Orinocos were bought on speculation, at fully 2c. ⅌ lb. above last sales. The receipts this week of Ox and Cow Hides amount to 26,718, of which 21,661 were from foreign ports, and 5,057 coastwise, as follows: 14,029 Orinoco, ⅌ Corsica; 1,600 dry and 1,800 salted Ox and Cow, and 90 Horse Hides from Buenos Ayres, ⅌ Helena; 2,011 Curacoa, ⅌ Sirius; 993 Aspinwall, ⅌ R. Spencer; 156 from West Indies, and 5,057 coastwise. Sales are: 2,600 dry Buenos Ayres, 20½c. lb. at 12c., 8 months, usual selection; 1,700 do. do., 21 do., at 23c., 6 do., do., 2,850 do do., 21¼ do., at 23½c., do. do.; 944 G. S. Buenos Ayres, (to go East,) 46 do., at 19½c., do. do.; 9,616 dry Orinoco, 20 do., at 21¾c., do. do.; 3,076 dry salted Sandwich Island, 28 do., at 16½c., 6 mos., rejected and water damaged; 700 dry Chagres, 16 do., 20c. @20½c., do do.; 2,011 dry Truxillo, 20 do., at 20¾c., do., do.; 840 dry St. Thomas, 23½ do., 18c., do., as they run; 400 green salted Western, 35 do., at 9c., do. do.; 3,500 dry Texas, at 26@28 do., 17c.@18c. cash less 5 ⅌ cent., do.; 219 dry Porto Rico, at 16c. do. 4½ do. do.; 372 dry Jamaica, 20 do., at 12c.@14½c., 6 mos., do.; 337 dry Porto Cabello, 25 do., at 18c. do., do.; 192 dry Rio Hache, 19 do., at 18c., cash less 5 ⅌ cent., do.; 600 dry Southern, 16 do., at 15c. cash, do., do.; 200 green salted Bermuda, 60 do., at 8½c., cash, less 4 ⅌ cent., do.; 6 bales Buenos Ayres Kip and Slunks, 25c., 6 mos. To arrive shortly at this port: The Velocidade, from Buenos Ayres, with 7,000 Hides; the W. R. Kebby, from Rio Grande, with 10,000 Hides; the Sullivan, from Orinoco, with 3,000 Hides and others. The stock on hand of Ox and Cow Hides is 92,400, as follows: 36,000 Dry Buenos Ayres; 14,000 Dry Rio Grande; 24,000 Dry Orinoco; 500 Dry Porto Cabello and Laguayra; 1,000 Dry Maracaibo; 300 Dry Chagres; 4,000 Dry Mexican, (Tampico and Matamoras;) 4,600 Dry St. Domingo and Port au Platte; 8,000 Dry West India, Southern, &c.; 200 Dry Honduras; 2,500 Dry California; 3,600 Dry Buenos Ayres; 400 Dry and salted Rio Grande and Buenos Ayres Horse.

HOPS—70 bales changed hands at 6¾c.@9¾c. ⅌ lb., mostly within the range.

IRON—Remains very quiet at old rates.

LEAD—Is still unchanged in demand and value.

LEATHER—Mr. HULL states that the demand continues good, although at this season we usually expect a very quiet market. The sales are about equal to the receipts; the Eastern manufacturers, having no surplus of stock on hand, are obliged to purchase for immediate consumption. With our present light stock and the season for the Western demand fast approaching, we cannot expect any heavy accumulation of stock. Oak tanned is steady and prices firm.

	Hemlock.	Oak.
Receipts	55,300	4,400
Sales	35,000	5,500
Stock	92,400	6,000
Stock same time last year	78,000

We quote: Oak Slaughter and salted, good light, 38c.@54c.; do., good middle, 38c.@34c.; do., good heavy, 31c.@32c.; do., Spanish, good all weights, 38c.@31c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good light, 24¾c.@25¾c.; do., do., good middle, 26c.@25¾c.; do., do., good heavy, 21¾c.@22¾c.; do., Orinoco, &c., good light, 28¾c.@24c.; do., do., good middle, 24c.@24¾c.; do., do., good heavy, 20c.@21c.; do., and B. A., damaged, all weights, 17½c.@21c.; do., do., do., poor, all weights, 16c.@17c.; do., Slaughter, in rough, 28c.@29c. On 9 months's credit.

LIME—Rockland can be had at 80c. for Common, and $1 05¼ for Lump, ⅌ bbl. Demand moderate.

MOLASSES—In good request, at full and buoyant rates.

NAVAL STORES—Nothing really new in this line.

OILS—Generally dull and heavy, at old quotations.

PROVISIONS—Pork is depressed, decidedly lower and declining, with sales reported since our last of about 850 bbls., in lots, mostly at $20 for Mess; $17 25 for Prime Mess; and $17@$17 12½ for Prime, ⅌ bbl. Cut Meats continue scarce and in request, at 9¾c.@10¼c. for Hams; 5c.@6¼c. for Shoulders, and 8¾c. for Rough Sides, ⅌ lb. Bacon is in very light supply and good demand, at 10¼c.@10¾c. ⅌ lb. Lard is scarce, and needed, at full rates; sales since our last reach about 400 bbls. fair to strictly Prime, closing at 11¼c.@12c. ⅌ lb. Beef is pretty active, though at strengthening prices; the sales since our last consist of 950 bbls. at $7 50@$8 for Country Prime; $8 50@$10 for Country Mess; $9@$12 25 for repacked do., and $13 50@$15 50 for extra do. ⅌ bbl. Prime Mess Beef now commands $15@$16 ⅌ tierce. Beef Hams are dull and heavy, prices ranging from $13@$16 ⅌ bbl. Butter is tolerably plenty, and is selling moderately, 14c.@18c. for Ohio; 14c. @19c. for common to very good State; 20c.@22c. for prime and choice do., ⅌ lb. Cheese is in ample supply and fair request, at 6c.@8¾c. ⅌ lb.

RICE—Sales were made of 300 tcs., at $3 75@$4 50 ⅌ 100 lbs.

SKINS—Mr. HULL sums up the week's business, thus: "GOAT—The market is dull, as most of the manufacturers have already laid in their stocks. I have only to notice a sale of 25 bales Mexican at 34c. 6 mos. The stock in first hands is light.

DEER—The market continues firm for prime parcels, and the demand is fair at the annexed quotations:

Sales are 49 bales Bolivar City at 48c.; 3,900 lbs. Missouri at 25c.@26c.; 1,700 lbs. (inferior) do. at 21c.; 500 lbs. Texas at 23c.@25c. cash. I quote:

New-York and Erie Railroad Company's Express Office, No. 119 Broadway, New-York.

THE NEW-YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD COMPANY.—Having made arrangements to transport the business of their road and connections, through railroads, and having secured a suitable country for that purpose, are now prepared to do a general Express business.

Having the exclusive control and direction of the movement of trains on which the business is done, they will be able to avail themselves of the privilege of giving unusual dispatch to articles forwarded by their express to points along the line of their road or its connecting branches.

Their facilities in this respect will be much greater than could be afforded to companies exclusively engaged in the Express business.

By an arrangement made with the United States and American Express Companies, articles will be taken by those Companies at Dunkirk and Buffalo, and forwarded with dispatch to all the principal cities and towns in the United States and Territories.

Contracts will be made by this Company for the transportation of freight over their road by the carload and sent by passenger trains to Dunkirk and Buffalo, to be forwarded from those points to their destination by the ordinary transportation lines.

Two Expresses will be sent daily in charge of special messengers, who will attend to the transportation of merchandise, packages, and the collection of bills sent with goods of all kinds, the proceeds of which will be promptly returned.

Particular attention will be given to the collection of notes, drafts and accounts, at and between New-York, Buffalo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, &c.

Trinity Methodist Church—Dedicatory Exercises.

Yesterday the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, situated on Thirty-fourth-street, between Seventh and Eighth-avenues, was dedicated to Divine worship by Bishop JANES. The edifice is 65 by 90 feet, and is built entirely of blue stone. The building and furniture cost $65,000, and the parsonage $8,000, which, together with $14,000 for the site, makes the total cost amount to $85,000. Many of the leading Methodist ministers were present, among whom we observed Bishops WAUGH and EDWARDS, and Rev. Dr. FOSTER, Chancellor and President of the Ohio University.

The dedicatory sermon was preached by Bishop JANES, from 1st Corinthians, 15th chapter, 8th and 9th verses: "But I will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost. For a great and effectual door is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries."

The rev. gentleman, in his introductory remarks, said that Paul considered Ephesus, the idolatrous city, to be an inviting field of ministerial enterprise. The idea which he developed and deduced from the text was, that large cities are important and inviting fields of Christian labor, and is growing religious prospects in them show it may be. [illegible] Rev. H. MARTIN, the former pastor of this congregation, delivered his farewell discourse in the afternoon, and Rev. Dr. FORTER, the newly appointed minister, preached the evening sermon. The majority of the pews have already been sold.

The Weather—Its Effects.

The thermometer, yesterday, scored not far from "100°," and kept close to that mark nearly all the day. Although not quite "the warmest day ever felt," as many averred it to be, it was certainly as warm as any person born in the Temperate Zone, would ever wish it to be. We speak from experience, and feelingly.

One man, an English emigrant, died from the effects of the heat, in Washington-street; and many others were struck down from the same cause.

In Brooklyn, also, several persons were prostrated by heat, but in each case the parties recovered, by the prompt application of proper remedies.

We really believe that a residence in the vicinity of the North Pole is not so very unpleasant after all. A pleasure trip thither would pay the gainer up.

The Newsboys.

The Newsboys' Institution is flourishing a dozen or twenty boys lodged there nightly. In Winter, when the snow and ice are on the earth and in the air, the lads come up more strongly in numbers. Now, the nights are warm, and the hour of closing the place is extended to 10 o'clock P. M. We dropped in for a moment, one evening, and found "the Dormitory" on hand, so to speak, in great numbers. He is a noble lad, and likes to be made much of. Mr. TRACY, who has charge of the Lodging Rooms, is in Milwaukee, with thirty boys in charge, for whom places have been found on Western farms. The Lodging-House occupies its old quarters at the top of the Sun building, and is always happy to see its friends.

The Police Department.

The Police Commissioners met on Saturday, and gave their attention to hearing applicants to fill vacancies upon the Police. There are nineteen vacancies, and for the places there were some five hundred applicants, representing as many nationalities as there were places to fill. Each applicant in turn is marched in before the Commissioners, and a series of interrogatories put to him. As reporters are not admitted, the nature of all the interrogatories it is impossible to give. How they stood upon voting is doubtless a leading inquiry. Successful applicants can answer this question.

☞ It is rumored that the District-Attorney and Mr. BRADY have agreed to allow the trial of BARNUM to take place at Hudson. In this case the trial will come off early in December. The Court has as yet made no order in the case.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.—Messrs. BERGER & DURAND, of the Brown Stone Store, Nos. 204 and 206 Sixth-avenue, would announce to the ladies of this City and its suburbs, and to all strangers visiting or about to visit the City, in accordance with their usual custom at the approaching close of the business season, but in time for those who are preparing for their Summer excursions, that they have determined

TO CLOSE OUT AT AN EARLIER
THEIR ENTIRE STOCK
RICH FANCY AND DRESS GOODS.

In adopting this course they are perfectly satisfied with the loss they must sustain in this general reduction of prices, as it gives them the advantage of presenting to their patrons at each successive season an

and, actuated by these considerations, they have during the past week marked down in plain figures

$100,000 WORTH OF
RICH FANCY AND DRESS GOODS,
AT LESS$ 50 PER CENT.

This, taken into consideration with the fact that these goods are no bankrupt or long accumulated stock, but of the latest importation,

BOUGHT AT AUCTION,

Many of which did not realize 50 per cent. on the original cost, shows most conclusively that this worthy of the attention of all those who are purchasing or anticipate purchasing during the Summer.

To attempt to enumerate each article, and the immense sacrifice caused by the

would require almost herculean labor; therefore, the simple announcement of the fact must convince a stranger, as it does their present patrons, of what they may expect in the way of

BARGAINS

DURING THE PRESENT SALE.

The custom of opening the store at 7 o'clock A. M., and closing at 6 o'clock P. M., in this instance will be dispensed with, in order to enable those who, either from inconvenience or choice, prefer—during the excessive heat—the cool of the morning or shades of evening to make their purchases. The store will be opened, as usual,

TO AVOID BEING SUN STRUCK.—In the South, to avoid coup de soleil, they place a piece of damp cotton in the hat, between its crown and the wearer's head. This precaution taken, you may walk in the hottest sun with impunity. But those light, easy, tasteful and economical hats sold by KNOX, corner of Broadway and Fulton-street, need no such cottonings. ☞ FOLEY, the well-known Gold Pen Manufacturer, of Broadway, has invented a new style (Patent Elastic) Bank Pen. These Pens are made in a peculiar manner, (both short and long nibs) They have a cut or slit on both sides of the nib, which gives them an excellent spring, and writes easy, just like the old goose-quill. We have used FOLEY's Gold Pens in the TIMES Office for a long time and find them superior to all others.

LONG ISLAND

Fremont Clubs in Brooklyn.

☞ The Republican young men of Brooklyn have organized a club, under the name of the ROCKY MOUNTAIN FREMONT CLUB, and have taken rooms in the Franklin Buildings, on the corner of Fulton and Orange-streets. The rooms are to be open every night, and be well supplied with plenty of papers and public documents for the instruction of its members. There will be a public meeting once a week for discussion and oratorical efforts. The temporary officers are G. W. MINGOLLE, President, and E. M. O'BRIEN, Secretary.

Mortality in Brooklyn.

There were sixty-eight deaths in Brooklyn during the week ending Saturday last. Males, 35; females, 30; adults, 34; minors, 44.

Principal Diseases.—Consumption, 9; convulsions and marasmus, 5 each; small-pox, 3; cholera infantum, dropsy in the head, 3 each; congestion of the lungs, croup, typhoid fever, dropsy, 2 each.

☞ The Common Council of Brooklyn, by resolution, have directed the Brooklyn City Railroad Company to put additional cars on the Flushing-avenue and on the Hamilton-avenue route, and also to run their cars on the Hamilton-avenue road until 10 o'clock every night—all for the better accommodation of the public.

Sudden Death.

JOHN RAYMAN, painter, residing at No. 16 Cliff-street, Brooklyn, just after dinner yesterday, seated himself in an out-building, and not returning as the house as soon as was expected, a member of his family went after him and found him dead, sitting upon a bench. Deceased had enjoyed his usual health up to the time of his death. It is supposed that he died from apoplexy.

A child, three months old, died suddenly at 48 Clinton-street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning.

Policemen Beaten.

A party of intoxicated Irishmen got into a fight on Saturday night, in Little-street, Brooklyn, when the Second District Police interfered, and several of the officers were severely beaten. The ringleaders were finally secured, and locked up to answer.

Found Drowned.

The body of an unknown man was found in the water at the foot of Dikeman-street, yesterday morning. Deceased was about 5 feet 7 inches high, 30 to 35 years of age, and had on black pants, heavy boots, blue shirt, white woolen under-shirt, hair black, with side whiskers. There is a scar on the left side of the neck, and India ink marks on the fingers. The body can be seen at the dead house, Canton-street.

Political.

A Fillmore and Donelson club has been organized in the Seventeenth Ward of Brooklyn. The following officers elected: President—JOHN A. BOUTELLE. Vice-Presidents—Jeremiah Carver, Charles Dogherell, C. N. Kingsbury. Recording Secretary—D. H. Hart. Corresponding Secretary—L. Duhesa, Jr. Treasurer—A. W. Silkworth.

Body Recovered.

Yesterday morning the body of WM. BLACKWOOD, of No. 13 Hudson-avenue, Brooklyn, who mysteriously disappeared about three weeks since, was found at the foot of North Second-street, E. D., in the East River. Coroner HARSON held an inquest, when a verdict of "found drowned" was rendered.

Horse Thieves.

Two men were arrested in Earle's Hotel, New-York, yesterday morning, by Officers MATHEWS and VAN WAGNER, of Brooklyn, on a charge of hiring horses and carriages at different stables in Brooklyn, and disposing of them for their own benefit. The accused parties, who have a great variety of names, were brought to Brooklyn and committed to answer.

☞ The Brooklyn Heights Seminary, Prof. A. GRAY, Principal, held its fifth anniversary on Friday evening, at the Seminary Building, Nos. 68 and 90 Montague-street, Rev. GEORGE W. BETHUNE, D. D., President of the Trustees, presiding. Reports on the several departments of study and compositions of the graduating class were read by A. H. DANA, Esq., Rev. Mr. BUSHNERSON and Rev. R. S. STORRS, D. D. Diplomas were conferred on twenty-two young ladies, and the exercises interspersed by the singing of three original odes, composed by members of the graduating class. The reports and compositions gave evidence of thorough discipline in the course of study. This is designed to embrace four years course, approximating to that of our Colleges for young men. When a third building, now in progress, is completed, the whole Institution will have 75 feet front by 60 feet depth, having an elegant stone front, with garden and recreation grounds in the rear, and will have cost upwards of $60,000. Rev. Dr. SPEAR is associated as teacher of Intellectual and Moral Science, and Rev. R. S. STORRS, D. D., gives an annual course of lectures on the evidences of Christianity.

The evening was closed by a pertinent and eloquent farewell address to the graduates by the Principal.

MONDAY, June 30—A. M.

The past week in Wall-street was one of increased movement and higher prices in the Stock market, and also in the amount of both the exports and receipts of Gold. The general Foreign Trade shows an import of Foreign Merchandise, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, of $3,527,969, against $3,611,345 same week last Summer. The Export of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods amounted to $1,226,280, against $968,641 same week last year. The Export of Gold, including $688,000 by steamer Arago for Havre on Saturday, amounted to $2,498,755, against $1,358,893 same week last season. The deliveries of California Gold by steamer Illinois on Saturday amounted to $2,270,868, against $1,678,000 same week last season. The Government office in this City held on Saturday afternoon, to the credit of all its accounts, Gold to the amount of $10,851,484, against $9,961,069 at the close of the previous week. This increase of $890,365, added to the export, as above, would make an apparent difference to the Bank reserve of the week of $2,684,120—the California shipment not having reached Bank until late on Saturday. But the average loss on the statement to be made up this afternoon, compared with the previous exhibit of $17,871,955, is not likely to reduce the sum total below $16,000,000, with $2,270,000 from California to be added at the beginning of the new week.

From the beginning of the current Treasury year, July 1, 1855, to the 1st inst. the monthly Custom-House tables made the total of the imports of Foreign Merchandise, exclusive of some small parcels of Foreign Coin.....$179,893,000

The rise on the official Stock list at the Brokers' Board during the week, is equal to 2¾ ₱ cent. on Erie shares, with which the other Roads sympathized to the extent of 1@1½ ₱ cent. State Stocks also improved 2 ₱ cent., and there was a better business done than usual of late, in Railway Bonds of established currency at an advance of 1@1½ ₱ cent. The general market closed very firm on Saturday, and the particular movement in Erie reached a degree of speculative excitement which is without a parallel since the early part of February last, when 60 ₱ cent. was reached for a day or two. The transactions in this Stock on Friday, including private sales, were scarcely short of 20,000 shares, and on Saturday, although the business of the day closed at 1 o'clock, the sales were over 15,000 shares. The Board list alone, for the two days, records 24,000 shares. The price left off 59¾ ₱ cent. after 60 ₱ cent. was paid. There is a Street rumor that the French speculators in Paris, who revolve around the famous Crédit Mobilier, have sent out large orders for the Stock, but we trace no other authority for this than the accidental circumstance that one of the partners of the Continental firm of MARIN & KANZ, who are the heaviest buyers of Erie, is now in Paris. Undoubtedly, however, the movement is backed by strong parties, as it is encouraged by a traffic on the Road this month which will far exceed that of any previous June. The Western Road shares, and New-York Central and Reading are all firm, and the speculation which set in last Monday looks like extending itself through the next week or two.

The Sugar Crop of Louisiana.

From the National Intelligencer.

There has been some difficulty amongst purchasers of sugar in understanding the cause of the high price maintained by this article of necessity for some time past. This is explained by Mr. SLIDELL, in his speech on Thursday last, on the subject of sugar and its importance to the sugar planters of the United States. Mr. SLIDELL stated a fact of no small importance to the country at large. He said that the sugar crop of Louisiana for several years past has falled of a full crop, and that only seventy thousand hogsheads, or probably little over not more than one hundred and twenty thousand hogsheads. One cause which gives rise to great apprehensions on the part of the planters of Louisiana is the supposed deterioration of the cane. It cannot be planted from the plant last year, but must be reproduced from the cane itself, which gradually recedes from the eyes. It is necessary to introduce new plants, and to do this economically, young cane must be carefully raised, which demands the eyes of the same. The Senate, in view of this information, very readily passed, on Mr. SLIDELL's motion, a joint resolution to authorize vessels to go to sea without unloading at New-Orleans. Mr. SLIDELL asked an inquiry, which was granted, that the Committee on Agriculture report upon the expediency of making a specific appropriation for the importation of seed sugar-cane for gratuitous distribution to the planters of the United States.

As this is a subject of general interest to the country, it is to be hoped that no constitutional impediments will be allowed to thwart a purpose so decidedly beneficial and expedient. Secretary DOBBIN, with a commendable solicitude on this subject, has requested the idea that our ships of war might, without detriment to the public service, bring home specimens of cane, and he has given instructions to that effect. Mr. BROWNE, the able Superintendent of the Agricultural Bureau, has also made some valuable suggestions on the subject.

The Coal Trade.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

The anthracite coal trade is kept up at the mines with considerable spirit, the tonnage by the three old lines reaching 187,327 tons, something less than last week, but still a heavy business, and especially so by the Reading and Lehigh.

There were shipped by the Lehigh, for the week ending on Saturday last, 43,460 tons, and for the season, 339,296 tons—thus gradually regaining what was lost by the late opening of the navigation.

The Schuylkill Navigation Company shows a falling off in tonnage, as compared with last week, of about 23 ₱ cent. The tonnage for the week ending on Thursday last is put at 34,027 tons, and for the season to the same time 476,374 tons, against 532,526 tons to same time last year.

The Reading Railroad, for the week ending on Thursday, reports the very large tonnage of 84,179 tons, and for the season to the same time, 1,004,044 tons, against 1,104,418 tons to the same time last year—showing a loss of little over one hundred thousand tons to corresponding time last year.

There is a fair supply of vessels, but not so much demand for coal as we think there should be, all circumstances considered.
